Lasher Wrecked Oil Plant Gates

Ashokan Man Arrested Charged with Operating Car While Intoxicated—Hearing Adjourned for Week—Other Police Court Cases.

George C. Lasher of Ashokan was arrested at 3:45 o'clock this morning on North street by Officer Schick who charged him with operating his Ford car while in an intoxicated condition. According to the officer's report the car shot off the road and crashed through the locked gates of the Standard Oil Company plant on North street. Lasher when placed under arrest proved very abusive, according to the officer. At police headquarters $123 was found on his person and also eight checks. He spent the balance of the night in the county jail. Later in police court he entered a plea of not guilty before Judge Harry E. Schirick and the hearing was adjourned for a week. Bail was fixed at $500.

Wood's Case Held Open.

Abram Wood was arrested by his daughter, Mrs. Charles Harbeck, for creating a disturbance at her home on Greenkill avenue Monday evening and was turned over to the police and lodged in jail for the night. This morning Judge Schirick told Wood that he was in no condition to be arraigned and adjourned the hearing for two days and fixed bail at $100.

"If you manage to get some one to go your bail be sure and stay away from your daughter's home," advised Judge Schirick. The judge stated that he was familiar with all the circumstances. Wood's wife is very ill and to save her life she had been removed to her daughter's house.

Her condition was such that any disturbance it was believed was apt to prove disastrous and the judge informed Wood that he ought to be ashamed of himself going to his daughter's house half drunk and using vile language.

Wood's excuse was that he wanted to see his wife and he was refused admittance to the house.

Traffic Cases in Court.

William Fritz, who said he had resided at 337 Hasbrouck avenue since August, was arrested Monday by Officer Bowser for driving past the traffic signal at the Rondout Creek Bridge. Harold A. Smith, arrested by Officer Harnen for failing to heed the bridge signal, had his hearing adjourned to Thursday.

Mitchell Renews All His Charges

Colonel Mitchell Denounces Present Air Service Before Aviation Board—Demands a Separate Air Force For the United States.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Sept. 29.—Colonel "Billy" Mitchell, storm center of the air row, today laid his charges of inefficiency and mismanagement of the nation's air power directly before the president's aviation board.

Though a court martial hangs over his head for accusing superiors with "almost treasonable administration" of the air service, Mitchell unhesitatingly renewed all his charges; denounced the present air force as "practically worthless;" and flatly said that aviation could not become efficient unless disentangled from the grasp of non-flying officers and war department red tape.

Speaking with the old time mannerisms and characteristics which Washington became so well acquainted with while he was testifying before Congressional aircraft committees, Mitchell again demanded a separate air force for the United States. He extolled aviation as the most important arm of the national defense.

The task of chief questioner of Mitchell was turned over by the board to Senator Bingham, Republican, Connecticut. Bingham commanded a flying school in France during the war and served under Mitchell.

Before Mitchell took the stand, Lieutenant Colonel Benjamin D. Foulois, commandant of Mitchell Field, New York, jolted the president's investigators by charging the general board of the army with doing all in its power to keep the air service under-manned.

Foulois, who was the first commander of the A. E. F.'s air service, meanwhile gave warm support to Mitchell's charges against war department heads and particularly the general staff.

Ever since inception of aviation, Fulois said he has had to fight the general staff to get any consideration for air service.

"Because of disapproval of the general staff, the A. E. F. air service never had sufficient personnel to meet the demands made upon it," charged Foulois.

Grand Jury to Get Kersner Case

Sheriff Wells and Sergeant James Cunningham of the State Troopers on Monday arrested Louis Kersner at Ferndale on a warrant charging him with leaving the scene of an accident without reporting it as the motor vehicle law requires. Several days ago Kersner while operating an automobile struck a motorcycle being run by Chief of Police Barnes of Ellenville, who was so badly injured, one of his feet being nearly severed, that he is still in the Benedictine Hospital. The accident happened on the highway between this city and Hurley. The accident was witnessed by a youth who later reported the number of the Kersner auto to the sheriff. Monday evening Kersner was arraigned before Judge Walter Webber at Flatbush, town of Ulster, and was held to await the action of the grand jury. He expected to furnish a surety bail bond.

Canfield Loses For Administrator

John A. Foster, who has been acting Federal prohibition director for the New York district, was named administrator on Monday by General Lincoln C. Andrews, head of the reorganized Federal dry forces.

The New York Times says that on a recent visit to New York General Andrews was reported to have said that the administrator here would have the naming of his own agents. That, however, followed an intimation that a New York man might get the position. It is well known that Republicans urged the appointment of Palmer Canfield, who before Mr. Foster's arrival, was Federal Prohibition director for the state of New York. Since then he has been special disbursing officer, which is generally considered little more than a clerical position, under the new administrator.

Mr. Foster is a young man. He has said, since his arrival here, that he is averse to publicity, and has seldom consented to see newspaper men. He issued a request that newspapers refrain from using the names of prohibition agents unless he consented to their use. It is believed, however, that he took this step largely in the interest of his agents' safety.

Middletown Gains 1,992; Hudson 10

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, Sept. 29.—The city of Hudson had a population of 11,755 when the state census was taken on June 1 last according to an announcement by Florence E. S. Knapp, secretary of state, who directed the enumeration. Five years ago the Federal census gave Hudson a population of 11,745, so the city shows a gain of but ten persons.

Middletown is credited with a population of 20,412, representing a gain of 1,992 in the last five years. The tabulation has now reached the stage so that all cities in New York state will know their population, according to the last census, within the next two weeks or so. Later on the population of the incorporated villages and towns will be in shape to announce.

Publication of state census figures was resumed today by Mrs. Knapp, after an interruption of a month since the first figures were made public. Today's announcement shows the following results of the enumeration taken last June, as compared with the Federal census figures of the year of 1920.

Place	1925	1920
Hudson	11,755	11,745
Middletown	20,412	18,420
North Tonnawanda	17,356	15,482
Amsterdam	35,260	33,524
Batavia	15,628	13,541

There had been pressure by the mayor's friends to induce him to become a candidate on an independent ticket.

Last Concession, Says Paris Press

French Cabinet Approves Attitude of Caillaux During Debt Negotiations—"Safety Clause" Is French Strong Point.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Paris, Sept. 29.—M. Caillaux, French finance minister, has made his last concession in the debt negotiations with the United States, according to the Parisian press.

Caillaux has given the United States debt funding commission his final proposal, in so far as the amount of payments and interest is concerned, the newspapers declare, and negotiations now center around the French demand for a "safety clause"—a provision whereby there will be some relation between the French payments and the French receipts from German reparations, so that the payments will be reduced if the reparations are reduced.

The cabinet today unanimously approved M. Caillaux's attitude during the Washington negotiations and gave full approval to all of his acts.

"The fact that America demands so many francs proves they are optimistic of the final result," said Premier Painleve to the International News Service after the cabinet meeting.

Although in general the press gives the impression that negotiations in Washington have reached a delicate state of affairs, Le Matin declares that America has made some significant concessions and "if silence gives consent America has already agreed to our safety clause."

The Echo De Paris says "If Caillaux wins the safety clause point, enabling France to cease payments to all the Allies in case of non-capacity of payment, the battle of the debts will be won."

Ere Nouvelle hints that there may be a rupture in the present negotiations. "A rupture after all is only a moratorium wrested from a surprised partner," says this newspaper. "If America wants her 'pound of flesh' we will respond, 'Caillaux go the limit to make a settlement' but not before placing the responsibility for the consequences on the shoulders of America'."

"It would be the easiest thing in the world for us to quit Washington," continued Ere Nouvelle. "We could slam the doors behind us, but the debt would remain unsettled, unsolved, unliquidated and two wrongs do not make a right."

Bandits Kill Bank Employe

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Cambridge, Mass., Sept. 29.—Edward Ross, Central Trust Company chauffeur is dead and Rufus Johnson, messenger, is severely wounded and a parcel of $10,000 is missing after an attack by bandits as the bank employes were entering the Ward Baking Company plant here today.

William O'Toole, Johnson's guard, told of the bank's car drawing up to the bakery and of Johnson's entry. Just as he reached the door, three men with drawn guns held him up. Hitting Johnson over the head with a gun butt, they seized the money bag. Interference by Ross ended as one of the bandits snapped a shot at him, penetrating his chest.

TWO HURT IN ACCIDENT INVOLVING FOUR AUTOS

Herman Hess of Veteran and Ernest Shultis of Saugerties were injured in an automobile accident involving four cars which occurred on Partition street, Saugerties, Sunday afternoon. A Ford car in which Hess and Shultis were riding was coming up the street. Parked in front of Kriese's market was a Chevrolet owned by James Hall of Kingston. Getting gas on the opposite side of the street at Klemm's garage was the Oakland car of James Corcoran of Kingston while coming down the street was an auto truck in charge of Irving Every of Kingston. In order to pass the cars the Hess Ford hooked into the Chevrolet and was turned over. The Every truck to avoid a crash with the Ford and running over its occupants, who were thrown out, was turned sharply and struck the Oakland car. Hess and Shultis were picked up and taken into the home of Mrs. Annie Sinnott where their injuries, consisting of severe cuts and bruises and contusions, were attended by Dr. R. F. Diedling and Dr. Hugh S. Chidester. The Ford car was badly damaged but the other three cars were only slightly damaged.

Two Bodies Recovered From Hulk of S-51

Divers Find Bodies of John L. Gibson, Engineman and William C. Teschemacher, Seaman—Probers Continue Search for Other Victims—No Evidence of Life Presented Divers Who Roam Over and Through the Hulk.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New London, Sept. 29.—With two of the S-51's dead already found, probers into the depths of the stricken submarine this afternoon worked in momentary expectation that the next door they opened might bring them upon other bodies of the disaster's victims or that it might yield up a man or men, who has clung steadfastly to the flame of life through the more than eighty hours that have elapsed since the craft plumbed the ocean's bed. This last was a slender hope since evidence of life has yet to be presented to the divers roaming over and through the hulk.

Those already claimed from the steel-encased tomb were John L. Gibson, engineman second class, of Portland, Oregan, and William C. Teschemacher, seaman second class, of Bangor, Pa., one of twin brothers aboard the submarine. The other, Frederick Peter Teschemacher, still is buried with the 31 remaining among the missing.

Gibson's body was discovered by one of the divers in the motor compartment, just aft of the conning tower before eight o'clock this morning, as the wreckers Monarch and Century were being withdrawn from the scene because of the heavy seas. Teschemacher was not discovered until some three hours later and the exact location of his body was not made known.

It was assumed, however, that it was located in the C. O. C. compartment, or conning tower, because the divers, one inside the hulk and the other without, had indicated that they intended to work forward.

Tried To Reach The Open.

This, if true, meant that it was unlikely the motor compartment contained other bodies of the victims and that Teschemacher had made a gallant effort to reach the open before the S-51 plunged to her end. A ten foot ladder leads from the deck of the conning tower to its hatch at the top, the same aperture through which the three survivors, Dewey Kile, Michael Lira and Alfred Geir, fought their way to liberty and life.

Three American homes thus were made happy but many others were sad. Gibson's death left a young wife here in New London at 25 Spicer avenue and the great blow struck home at her as only such a blow can. She rallied bravely, however, and began preparations to go to the naval hospital at Newport where she will claim her own.

Gibson's Body Found.

Grim days of waiting, days of alternate dread and hope, came to a climax shortly after 8 o'clock this morning when a diver, probing the bowels of the stricken submarine, found the first body of those who went to the bottom when the craft was rammed. He was John L. Gibson, engineman, of 480 Hall street, Portland, Oregon, and the discovery of his body changed foreboding to knowledge and fear to certainty.

Second Body Recovered.

The body of William C. Teschamacher was recovered from the hulk, it was announced at 11:15 a. m. at the local naval base. It was the second body discovered among the 33 men missing since the disaster. Teschamacher had a twin brother aboard, Frederick T., who is among the missing. Teschamacher's home is listed at 126 South Second street, Bangor, Pa., the family coming originally from Indianapolis. His rank was seaman, first class.

The steel clad prison and perhaps tomb of the thirty-three men who dived to the depths when the S-51 sank like a plummet had given up her secret.

Life might still exist in the flooded hulk but Gibson's and Teschamacher's bodies proved that death was there also.

Thirty-three men plunged to the bottom at a depth of 130 feet almost four days ago and now the first of them had come up a grim reminder of a tragedy that alike shocked the world and until this morning defied the efforts of those who would seek to salvage what remained.

Unexpected Development.

The finding of the bodies came as sudden and unexpected development, the wreckers Monarch and Century having been driven off the scene earlier in the day by the high seas. At that time it was thought that the divers would be sent down merely to preserve a spirit of analysis where none seemed possible.

Body in Good Condition.

A diver lowered [illegible] long minutes. He probed the depths and anxious watchers lost [illegible]. A sudden pull on the rope from below notified them that something unusual had taken place. By means of signals the news was communicated and the body lifted by ropes. It was in good condition an easily indentified.

All energy now, those above the surface ordered other men down to the hulk to probe for other bodies in the flooded compartment. While one waited outside to lend what aid he might, the other stalked through the strangely silent chamber, filled to the hatches, but with no immediate result.

Gibson Died In Battery Room.

As far as the search through the next few hours revealed, the room contained no further human evidence of the great tragedy. Gibson died in the battery compartment and possibly he died alone.

News of the event was kept from the families of other victims residing in New London because it was deemed that it would come to them as a needless shock.

Second Body In Conning Tower.

Although the message confirming Teschamacher's death contained only the barest details, it was assumed by Lieutenant Commander Flanigan that the body was found in the conning tower hatch, indicating that the doomed seaman had made an heroic effort to reach the open before the S-51 nosed into the final plunge.

The assumption of the body's position, Lieutenant Commander Flanigan pointed out, was based on the purport of a preceding message, which declared the divers were working forward. This indicated to him that they had preceded through the battery room finding further evidence of the submarine's dead.

That dead there were, in quantities, however, was the presumption upon the discovery of the second body after less than three hours of search about the hulk.

Teschemacher was only 19 years old. His family was notified immediately by wire and the bodies of both men ordered removed to the naval hospital at Newport.

Widow Braced for Ordeal.

Mrs. Gibson, residing at 25 Spicer avenue here, was informed, however, without delay. A special deputation, composed of Lieutenant Commander Scanlan, Mrs. Scanlan and Dr. Jones, friend of all the stricken, was sent to the bereaved home and there tried to soften a blow that could be nothing, if not hard.

The sailor's widow took the news as sailors' widows since time immemorial have schooled themselves to take such tidings. She took it without flinching, resigned to the fate she must have known days ago had overtaken her husband.

It was news, however, that ultimately must penetrate the other stricken homes and its effect was devastating. Hoping against hope, they had fought the good fight, they had kept the faith. But this was almost confirmation of their worst fears.

One hour after the finding of Gibson's body, New London was plunged in deepest mourning. After more than eighty hours, the grim blow had fallen.

PURE AND SAFE MILK

To Our Customers:

The many cases of typhoid fever and the four deaths reported as being traceable to raw milk, has naturally caused great anxiety and fear among the people of Kingston. This condition prompts us to use this means of assuring our customers that all milk coming from our Creamery is properly pasteurized and is pure and safe from infection, as certified by the highest authority in the State.

The New York Sun says:

"The value of the pasteurization of milk as a safeguard for the public health has been definitely ascertained by a group of leading scientists, who have recently reported their findings to the New York City Board of Health. The tests have covered a period of nearly two years, at a specially equipped laboratory at Endicott, N. Y., and were conducted under the direction of Dr. C. E. North, Director of the Research Laboratories of the New York City Board of Health. The following eminent scientists co-operated in the research: Dr. H. S. Cummings, United States Surgeon General, who was represented by Dr. Charles Armstrong; Dr. V. A. Moore, Dean of the New York State Veterinary College, Cornell University; Dr. William H. Park, Director of the Bureau of Laboratories, New York City Department of Public Health; Dr. Milton J. Rosenau, Professor of Preventive Medicine and Hygiene, Harvard University, and Dr. Augustus P. Wadsworth, Director of the New York State Division of Laboratories and research. They were assisted by twenty-five bacteriologists and engineers.

The tests included tuberculosis, typhoid fever, diphtheria and a germ disease of the throat. As a result of the experiments and tests it was definitely determined that with the proper equipment milk heated to a temperature of 142 degrees and held at that temperature for 30 minutes and then promptly cooled will be free from any of the germs named." We wish to assure our customers that all milk coming from our Creamery is pasteurized as indicated above, that our appliances, methods, etc., are and have been for the past nine years, not only under the close inspection and direction of our local Health Officer and Sanitary Inspector, but also under the direction and regulations of the State Board of Health and its Inspectors.

The report is published by the United States Public Health Service of the Treasury Department, as Public Bulletin No. 147 and contains 217 pages, and is signed by all the scientists named above.

Bread a Staple Food Throughout the Ages

Bread is the name given to the staple food product prepared by the baking of flour. In old English the word was written, as we write it, bread, and it is common in various forms to many Teutonic languages, as "brot" in Germany, "brod" in Dutch, and "brot" in Swedish and Danish. It is probably connected with the root of "to break," for its early uses are confined to "broken pieces or bits" of bread, which in the twelfth century began to be called loaf, while bread became the genuine name of this kind of food.

Bread-making, or at any rate the preparation of cakes from flour or crushed grain by means of heat, is one of the most ancient of human arts. The charred remains of cakes made from coarsely ground grain have been found in the Swiss lake-dwellings that date back to the Stone age. The cakes were made of different kinds of grain, barley and one-grained wheat being among the ingredients. This bread was made from grain crushed between some hard surfaces, and in the lake-dwellings many rounded stones have been found, which were evidently used for pounding or crushing grain against the surface, more or less concave, of another stone.

Antique Furniture

Amateur collectors often wonder how there can be so much antique furniture in existence. But when they stop to consider that there are thousands of homes in Europe still filled with the furniture of olden times, they understand. In the days when furniture making was on the crust, there were only two classes of people. One was the "haves"; the other the "have nots." There was no middle class, so those "haves" had much. Fine furniture, which was to be found everywhere, was handed down intact, for in those days a man gave everything to his oldest son and to no one else. In that way estates were not broken up, and family furniture was passed on from generation to generation. Much of it still remains as it was long ago in the old homes.

Mice Without Hair

A tribe of hairless mice were recently discovered in London and they were regarded as such great curiosities that they were exhibited before the members of the Zoological society. The little animals were caught in a trap in the northern part of the city of London and several of them have been observed by scientists who are endeavoring to explain their origin. Several mice have been born in captivity and when the pink little ones are first seen they are much like other mice at the same period of their lives. The hair appears in the usual way but when they are about three weeks old the hair has commenced to disappear. That of the top of the head is lost first and then gradually the baldness extends all over the body.

MOTOR-BUS COMPETITION.

In large sections of the country the increasingly popular motor-bus is decreasing the earnings of the railroads from passenger traffic. It is stated that of seventy railroads whose passenger revenues during the first seven months of the current year exceeded a million dollars no less than sixty showed a shrinkage in receipts from passenger traffic, and of the ten showing an increase five enjoyed a share of the heavy traffic to Florida. Not only is the motor-bus responsible for this situation in general, but on some lines it is reported to have done vast damage to local passenger traffic. Having the free use of roads maintained at public expense, the interurban motor-bus companies are able to give a frequent as well as a safe service, and they attract business not only because the speed of the motor-bus nearly equals that of local trains but because its patrons are landed much nearer their destination and can save the cost of taxi trips from railway stations.

Though the railroads have increased their earnings this year in consequence of the great volume of freight traffic, the motor-bus development is taken seriously. Some roads are meeting the new competition by providing bus lines of their own, and the retiring president of the Pennsylvania Railroad is quoted as saying that the motor-bus will eventually prove a feeder of the railroads rather than a hindrance to their development. However that may be, the public would seem to be destined to gain through the new development.

SLAVES TO SELF-INDULGENCE.

A startling result of "the revolt of youth" in some instances, which was referred to by President Richmond in his address to his Union College class of '29, would seem to call for wider mention as a warning to greater numbers. From reports of this address it appears that there are young men in the colleges who, in their determination to "live their own lives" not only repudiate the authority of parents and college faculties, of the statutory and the moral law, but burn the candle at both ends until their vitality is reduced in fearful and extraordinary ways. It seems that there are young college men of this self-wrecking class who can not collect their faculties sufficiently to dress in the morning by smoking a cigarette and must call for the turning on of the victrola in order to get the stimulus of jazz. And there are students who "have to be transported across the campus lest they arrive at their classes in a state of physical exhaustion."

To this they have been brought by their determination to be "free." Confusing freedom with boundless license, they have become slaves to self-indulgence and persisted until limbs and nerves fail them, until they have to be transported to classes after being jazzed into their shirts. Until their plight is fully realized no doubt they would sneer if told that the freedom to live sane and wholesome lives is a much higher form of the god-like privilege than their voluntary slavery to their impulses, and of course they would scoff if reminded that the wage of sin is death. Apparently "rescue work" is called for in the colleges as well as in the slums.

President Coolidge's expressed anxiety lest newspaper and other public comment should imperil the settlement of the French debt recalls President Wilson's statement in 1914 that our neutrality should be so strictly lived up to that Americans would be even "neutral in thought." Of course that was impossible then and nothing of a similar sort is possible now. People are bound to think, to talk and to print not only according to opinion formed from investigation but according to their preconceptions and prejudices.

By taking his plane up to a great height and making a "diving start" Lieut. Williams of the navy attained at Mitchell Field the record-breaking speed of 302.2 miles an hour for one kilometer, but this speed will not go into the record because the "diving start" maneuver is not allowed in racing. Lieut. Williams is confident that by a diving start from a height of 9,000 feet he could achieve a speed of 350 miles an hour.

The thanks of all sane men are due to President Coolidge for conspicuously disregarding the arbitrary and stupid custom of outlawing the straw hat after September 15, no matter what the weather conditions may be during the weeks that follow. Straw hats should be a matter of free individual choice as well as of weather conditions and climate.

LESS WORK.

I was talking to a young physician recently, and he was pointing out that his profession was the only one where the members thereof were gradually working themselves out of a job.

His father, also a physician, had told him of the large number of cases of typhoid he always had in August and September, with a few always on his list. Also of the many cases of diphtheria where he had to spend weary watchful hours, the long drawn out "bronchitis" cases which were really tuberculosis, where he made daily or weekly visits for months and months But with the advent of new knowledge of the above and other ailments, and the increasing number of physicians, there was now really less work for physicians to do.

Your typhoid case is now looked upon as actually an accident. Somewhere, somehow, the infection has been picked up, and the most searching efforts are made to locate the water, the food, or the carrier responsible for the infection. Your health department follows up a case of typhoid fever till it locates the source. It is not to be wondered at therefore that typhoid is now being gradually wiped out. In diphtheria, the antitoxin has saved thousands of lives and the test now made to find susceptible cases is opening up another large field in the prevention of this terrifying scourge of past years.

And instead of our tuberculosis people all dying in one or two years; more than half of them are now rescued from this lingering death, and take their regular rightful places in the world.

The work of the physician in the near future will be the prevention of illness, and the giving of advice along health lines to every mother of the family.

The dentist now looks over the teeth every three or six months and saves many teeth as chewers, and also many teeth that might otherwise be a source of trouble to the entire body. Sometimes we think that in his effort to save a good natural chewing service he takes a chance with some infected teeth.

If you are going to build a house you get an architect and he plans it all according to your needs. He watches the heating, ventilating, the brick, lumber, and other materials, entering into the construction. Your body, your health, is your biggest asset. Why not let your family doctor take a good look over you and your family at least once a year. He should know your needs, and prescribe sound advice to the whole household.

150 YEARS AGO

The Origin of the U. S. A.

By Jonathan A. Rawson, Jr.

GENTLEMANLY CONFISCATION.

The newspaper reporters who were covering the Continental Congress in Philadelphia 150 years ago, if either wires or wireless had been at hand, would have been filing copy on the evening of September 15, 1775, reading much as follows:

The Continental Congress, at its regular session today in Federal Hall, told Georgia what to do with seized British cargoes, laying down a line of procedure which will doubtless be adopted as a model at all ports throughout the provinces.

The recently arrived delegates from Georgia had reported to the Congress that two vessels arriving there from Great Britain had been seized and their cargoes stored, "there to remain until the Congress determined what should be done with them."

After a brief discussion the Congress resolved that it be recommended to the convention at Georgia to cause the cargoes "either to be sent back or sold at public auction; that out of the moneys arising from such sales, the proprietors or shippers be paid the prime cost of the said cargoes and all charges attending the same, and the overplus to be retained by the said convention and by them be applied towards putting their province in a posture of defense."

Moderate measures for Revolutionists, indeed. Their measures had not always been so moderate when tea was concerned, and they became decidedly drastic a few months later. But in September, 1775, they were not holding Boston Tea Parties every time a British merchantman hove in sight.

The Continental Congress of 1775 was hardly more than an advisory body in its relations with the provincial congresses. There were then no articles of confederation, no constitution nor other binding agreement subscribed to by all the provinces or colonies, covering their relations with one another and with the Continental Congress. Their past history provided no precedent for their guidance. Not even yet were they sure that they were to have their own governmental system, and many of them were still calling themselves Britons and Englishmen.

LAURA TERRACINA.

Laura Terracina, of Naples, was born in 1500. She was much praised by the contemporary literati. Her death was violent—being killed by her husband, Boccalini Mauro. Four editions of her works, principally poems, were printed at Venice.

TEMPERANCE SOCIETIES.

The first meeting of the Sons of Temperance was held in New York 83 years ago today, and on that occasion a great international order of tetotallers was launched—and despite Mr. Volstead, et al, the need for this type of organiaztion is still felt, that is according to the reports from medical and church centers recently printed in the press. The society was divided into five great international divisions, one for North America, another for Great Britain and Ireland, two for Australia, and one for New Zealand.

Temperance societies originated in America in the early part of the Nineteenth century, and the first national society was organized in 1826 and the first national temperance convention met in Philadelphia.

LONDON'S WATER SUPPLY.

The first great project for providing a city with a general water supply was successfully completed in London 312 years ago today. This supply was brought from New River.

The work commenced in 1609, and was carried out despite great opposition and many difficulties by Hugh Middleton, an engineer of that period. The water was distributed through the streets of London by means of pipes made from the stems of small elm trees, cut in six foot lengths, with one end tapered so as to fit into the bore of the other. Four hundred miles of such pipes were laid and the supply formally inaugurated on September 29, 1613. Water had first been conveyed to the English metropolis in the Thirteenth century, but only on a very small scale, for a fraction of the population.

OLIVE BRIDGE.

Olive Bridge, Sept. 28.—Olive Democrats have nominated the following town ticket for the coming election: Supervisor, Lester B. Davis; town clerk, Virgil C. Gordon; collector, Earley North; superintendent of highways, Egbert M. Boice; assessor for four years, John Barringer; assessor for two years, Neil R. Windrum; justice of peace, four year term, Fred L. Weidner; two year term, M. Floyd Terwilliger; overseer of poor, Andrew P. Every and Freeman Every; constables, Claude Bell, Earl C. Elmendorf and Henry Sheldon.

The masquerade dance held in I. O. O. F. hall Wednesday evening was largely attended. Maisenhelder's five piece orchestra furnished the music for dancing. The hall was electrically lighted for the occasion and the costumes were gorgeous as well as comical. Prizes were awarded. About 250 participated in the event. Dancing will continue every Wednesday evening until further notice. Music furnished by the same orchestra.

Dance At Port Ewen.

Hope Lodge, No. 45, K. of P., will hold another one of their popular dances in Pythian Hall, Port Ewen, Wednesday evening, September 30. Music by Zucca.—Advertisement.

"-TOO WARM FOR THE FURNACE FIRE"

Box No. 147
Waterford, Conn.

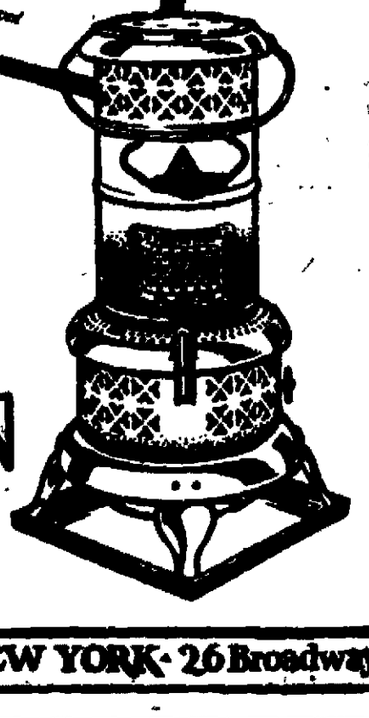

Dear Sir:

Just now it is too warm for the furnace fire, so after dinner I retire to the den, open a window to the west, place a heater between me and it, and study and read in comfort, warming the fresh air as it enters.

And then of a sharp morning, I jump out of bed a half hour before time to rise, close the window, light the heater, and lay back in bed and doze, and incidentally take a lesson in drawing from the patterns thrown on the ceiling by the top of the heater. Then rise and dress in a warm chamber. And a very important fact is that all this comfort has cost me less than eight cents.

Yours respectfully,
ANTHONY DIXON

"SMILING JACK" HARDING'S LECTURE ON AVIATION

Just at this time when only the dark and distressing side of aviation is being presented to the consideration of Americans, The Federation of Women's Clubs are desirous of announcing that one of the two famous lecturers whom they are bringing to Kingston this year will be Lieutenant Jack Harding, "Smiling Jack," of the World Fliers. Twenty-four countries were touched by the world fliers in their aerial circumnavigation of the earth during which time Lieutenant Jack Harding and his fellow circumaviators certainly experienced a variety of human emotions. The sights they saw and the experiences they endured will be told in narrative and shown in picture by Lieutenant Harding. This lecture and the one by the brilliant young editor of the Century Magazine, which will be the second in the course, will both be given in the Kingston High School Auditorium.

MILTON.

Milton, Sept. 29.—F. W. Schroeder has sold his place and residence on Sands avenue to a Brooklyn party. This property was formerly owned by the late Charles T. Ordway.

Between four and five hundred of Milton residents attended Cook & Whitneys travelling show and play, Uncle Tom's Cabin at St. James Park last Friday evening. The entertainment was as good as those generally given by traveling shows.

A town banquet for the benefit of the S. H. Halleck library will be held at St. James Hall Wednesday evening, October 21. The dinner will be served at 7 o'clock. A dinner will also be served later for the farmers who find it impossible to attend at the earlier hour.

The machinery for the Storm King Woolen Mills new building has been installed and is ready for the electric power connections to be made by which the knitting looms will be run. The offices are now located in the new building. A. W. Givens of Marlborough has the contract for the wiring of the building. The Storm King Woolen Company is a New York corporation formed by Walter McMichaels who was previously connected with the Milton Woolen Mills. Their equipment consists of forty looms, three sets of cards and three spinning mules. The fabrics which will be manufactured are tweeds and a special fabric of Bedford cord which will be woven in the white and dyed various shades for shipment to the South American markets. In addition to these some of the machinery will be used for the making of the Rayon fabric. The Bedford cord is of special construction for use in the large plantations of South America. This is made in the form of a poncho and is worn by the workers on the sheep and cattle ranches. The tweeds go to the manufacturing clothing trade all over the country. The new building is of concrete, brick and glass construction and is what is commonly called a daylight mill. The floor space is 12,000 square feet and 40x150 feet. The new plant plans to do all of its own wet finishing and will employ about thirty at the start.

W. R. Ordway has been appointed a representative of the Airlex Rubber Company of Chicago to introduce and sell in this territory the Hughes valve caps for auto tires.

Wednesday afternoon, October 14, the Milton Melody Club will meet at the home of Mrs. Edward S. Brown.

Bandits' Buried "Loot" Awaits Lucky Finder

About one hundred thousand dollars in gold dust and currency lies buried in a certain Colorado gulch and has been there since 1864. The currency was wrapped in oiled silk and the dust was placed in tin cans. This treasure was interred by Jim and John Reynolds, leaders of a gang of outlaws which terrorized three states during the closing years of the Civil war. By adding murder to highway and stage robbing, they so incensed the citizens of Park county that a posse went forth to exterminate them. It was while in hiding from this posse in Geneva gulch at the junction of Deer and Elk creeks, which flow into the Platte river, that the Reynolds brothers, without informing the other bandits, hid their loot.

The exact spot selected for the cache was an abandoned mine tunnel. A nearby tree was suitably marked, and the brothers fled with their gang. One was killed by the posse. Jim Reynolds and four others were killed in a bunch some weeks later. Finally there was but one left alive, John Reynolds. He was shot while attempting, with Albert Brown, to raid a ranch. Brown carried him to a place of refuge and Reynolds, realizing that he was about to die, told Brown about the buried wealth and how to find it. In addition, he drew a rough map of the locality which has descended through photographed copies to the present day. Having done this, Reynolds being full of bullets, gave up the ghost.

Yet, though men have been searching for this treasure for over half a century, it has not been found. Forest fires have swept the gulch and the old tunnel undoubtedly has caved in, burying within its embrace the loot hidden by Jim and John Reynolds in the brief pause of a flight from a posse.—Josiah M. Ward, in Adventure Magazine.

Chief Proved Worthiness

How did the story of Hercules and the three-headed monster, Cerberus, at the entrance of Hades stagger the youthful imagination! What strength, what daring right at the mouth of the eerie underworld! Yet from British East Africa comes a news dispatch with the story of a native chief who braved a blazing and spitting leopard barehanded. Hercules' story after all is but mythology, but Murico was Trimu's in reality. Leopards had been raiding the kraals. Several of the chief's subjects had been killed. One morning the alarm was given and Trimu, seven feet tall and a giant in strength, ran from his hut and, seeing the leopard mauling two natives, tackled him with his bare hands and tore him to pieces. The natives of British East Africa apparently exercise due common sense when they elect their chiefs.—Pierre Van Paassen in Atlanta Constitution.

Japanese Women Lawyers?

Japanese women will be allowed to practice law in the courts of the empire if a measure advocated by the woman suffrage party receives the approval of the next diet session. Discussing the proposed bill, which would put women barristers on the same plane as the male members of the bar, one of the leaders of the woman suffrage party said: "Women have proved to be good doctors and they are certainly better fitted to deal with crimes and home problems than men because they understand them better. The argument that women are too sentimental is ridiculous."

Amazing Achievements in Railroad Safety Put 90 Per Cent of Railroad Accidents Last Year Were the Fault of Victims or Workers.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Cleveland, Ohio, Sept. 29, (Special)—Amazing results in the railroad safety movement were announced by Charles E. Hill, general safety agent of the Steam Railroad Section of the National Safety Council, now holding its fourteenth annual congress in this city. Addressing the opening session of the Steam Railroad Section at the Hotel Cleveland Chairman Hill said, among other things:

"Fourteen years ago, or about the time organized safety started functioning on American railroads, our progress at first was measured almost wholly in the elimination of physical conditions contributing to the casualty toll. As time went on we gradually passed from the physical aspect into the realms of the human equation.

"Man has kept pace with progress in that he has modernized machinery, renovated industrial plants, put his house in order, so that accidents from the proper use of these agencies have been rendered almost negligible.

"The progress of things inanimate has been greater than the progress of man himself. While he has been busy in delving into the intricacies of the things which are for the betterment of mankind he has neglected to train the mind to meet the new order of things as they exist today. Thus, we find the human element as the potent factor in our safety program we must train the mind so that man in the performance of his duties will pursue the course that is efficient and safe.

"In analyzing employe casualties we are stunned at the disclosures. When we find that out of the 1,479 employes killed and the 124,655 injured on the railroads of the United States last year that 90 per cent of the entire number was due to the human element—that the fault lies either with the victim or one or more of his co-workers, we then realize what a tremendous responsibility we have.

"I am glad to say that leading railroad men are fully in accord with the general policies followed in our efforts to prevent accidents. They recognize the fact that safety is a vital factor in railroad operation and the financial and moral support they are giving this movement is indicative of their great interest in conserving the lives of their employes.

"Organized safety has indeed been a vital factor in railroad operation. In 1913 before constructive safety work had an opportunity to make itself felt, 10,964 persons were killed and 200,308 persons injured. In 1924 there were 6,617 persons killed, a reduction of 39.6 per cent, and 143,739 persons injured, a reduction of 28.2. It must be remembered that this reduction in casualties—which refers to all classification—was made in the face of a material increase in the number of railroad employes, an increase in the volume of freight and passenger traffic, and what is still of greater moment and increase of 167 per cent in the number of casualties at railroad highway crossings. If we confine ourselves to employe and passenger fatalities our record of achievement would show the phenomenal reduction of 58 per cent.

"The duty is ours to carry on this great work and it must be pursued with greater zeal than ever before. Where cooperation is greater, accidents are fewer."

WOMEN TO MAKE PILGRIMAGE TO BURROUGHS'S GRAVE

The New York State Federation of Women's Clubs is cooperating with other organiaztions in arranging for a pilgrimage to the grave of John Burroughs at Roxbury on Saturday, October 10, and Mrs. Harry P. Van Wagenen, chairman of the Third District Branch, is arranging for Kingston women to have a part in the pilgrimage. It will be possible to secure an auto bus to make the round trip, provided 25 people wish to go. As it will be necessary to know as soon as possible as to the number desiring to make the pilgrimage, all women wishing to avail themselves of this opportunity are asked to at once telephone Mrs. G. F. Rice, 1725-J. The chairman of the Third District Branch asks that as many Kingston women as possible join other women of the district in thus paying honor to John Burroughs's memory. As this pilgrimage comes on Saturday, it will be possible for teachers of public schools to go.

His Interest

"Six little pups were borned at my place last night," announced Lem Hamm of Slippery Slap. "Cutest little fellers you ever laid your eyes on."

"That so?" returned an acquaintance. "Didn't I hear something about a new baby at your house last night, too?"

"Come to think, I reckon you did."

"Is it a boy or a girl?"

"Why, I—durned if I thought to ask. I was so interested in the pups."—Kansas City Star.

BEATTY'S MILK PURE.

Similarity of Names Caused Careless Person to Circulate Baseless Rumor.

Since the board of health excluded the milk of three dealers from the city early this month there has been considerable talk about the streets over the milk situation. The announcement recently that typhoid fever had been traced to milk has caused many stories to be circulated. Among the stories which have been gaining circulation is that the milk of John H. Beatty, proprietor of Sundam Farms on Hurley avenue, was one of the sources of typhoid. This story is without foundation. Mr. Beatty's milk has been found absolutely free from contamination and at the present time there is no trace of typhoid on this dairy and during his entire career in the milk producing business there never has been.

Mr. Beatty called the attention of The Freeman to the rumor which has been running in circulation during the past few days. Not only is the milk from the Sundam Farms pure but it stands alone with the best sold in the city. Numerous customers have inquired during the past few days about this rumor and all have been referred to Health Officer Connolly for further information as to the quality of the Beatty milk.

Investigation seems to lead back several weeks ago to the time when the milk of three dealers was excluded from sale in the city. At that time the product of Rosario Abria was excluded from sale and the similarity of the pronunciation of that name to many with Beatty seems to be the cause of the present rumor in regard to Mr. Beatty's milk. The dairy at Sundam Farms is always open to visitors and the public is always welcome to come and visit the dairy and see how the milk is produced and handled for delivery to customers.

Mr. Beatty suggests that anyone who desires further information in regard to this milk communicate with the health authorities of the city.

GNU AND GOAT

"There are a few of us left," said the White-Tailed Gnu. He looked like a very ugly sort of a horse and his face showed that he was cross and did not care for anyone.

The White-Tailed Gnu.

"I don't suppose many will mind," answered the White-Bearded Gnu. They were named these names as you can easily guess because one's tail was white toward the end and the other had a funny-looking beard which was white.

"I don't suppose many would mind if there weren't any of you or your kind around, my dear," said the White-Tailed Gnu. "Yes, I can return the compliment."

"Well, none of us are so very pleasant," said the White-Bearded Gnu. "That is true enough. But why should we be? I wouldn't care to make the effort to be friendly and nice."

"Neither would I," said the White-Tailed Gnu.

"They say it comes quite naturally to some creatures," said the White-Bearded Gnu.

"What! To be friendly and nice! I can't understand it," said the White-Tailed Gnu.

"They say that the snakes are cross when they are young and that they become far more pleasant as the days or the months or the years go by. They're cranky when they're quite little and squirming and wriggling. But when they're bigger they are often extremely pleasant. Some crush creatures, some bite creatures and poison them, but the ones who don't do either of these things (and there are many who don't) grow more friendly as they grow older," said the White-Bearded Gnu.

"So, I've heard," said the White-Tailed Gnu. "I heard the keeper telling that to some one the other day and he also said:

"'But the Gnu family grow crosser every single day.' Ah, that shows how sensible we are. For as we grow older we know enough to become crosser all the time. And our reason for this is,

"'Why be pleasant when we can be cross?'"

They did not talk after this, but in a yard not far away was a goat.

His name was Tan. "I am an imported goat," he said. He had been given his name because he was tan in color, almost a reddish tan.

"I don't know what you mean by that," said Billy Goat, in the adjoining yard, "unless you mean you're a mighty cross goat."

"I don't mean anything of the sort," said Tan.

"But you are cross," said Billy.

"Ah, yes, that I am," agreed Tan, shaking his head, as though it pleased him. "I won't let anyone come in my yard. None of the other goats are good enough for me. I have to be kept by myself."

"What you say is perfectly true," said Billy, "but do these things mean the same as imported?"

"No, no, no," said Tan, shaking his head again so that his long beard waved from side to side. "I will go on talking to you as soon as I have had a little meal of grain and hay."

Tan had something to eat in his yard and Billy ate some hay in his own yard. Billy was with a number of other goats, as he was friendly and pleasant and good natured.

"When I say that I am an imported goat," commenced Tan, after a few moments, "I mean that I have been brought here from a foreign land—that is a land from far away.

"You see that makes me unusual and interesting. And it makes me feel as if I couldn't be too friendly with common creatures around me. They wouldn't appreciate me! Why once a man came in my yard to clean it out and to see if I were all right, and I went for him with my horns! Well—I almost, almost killed him!"

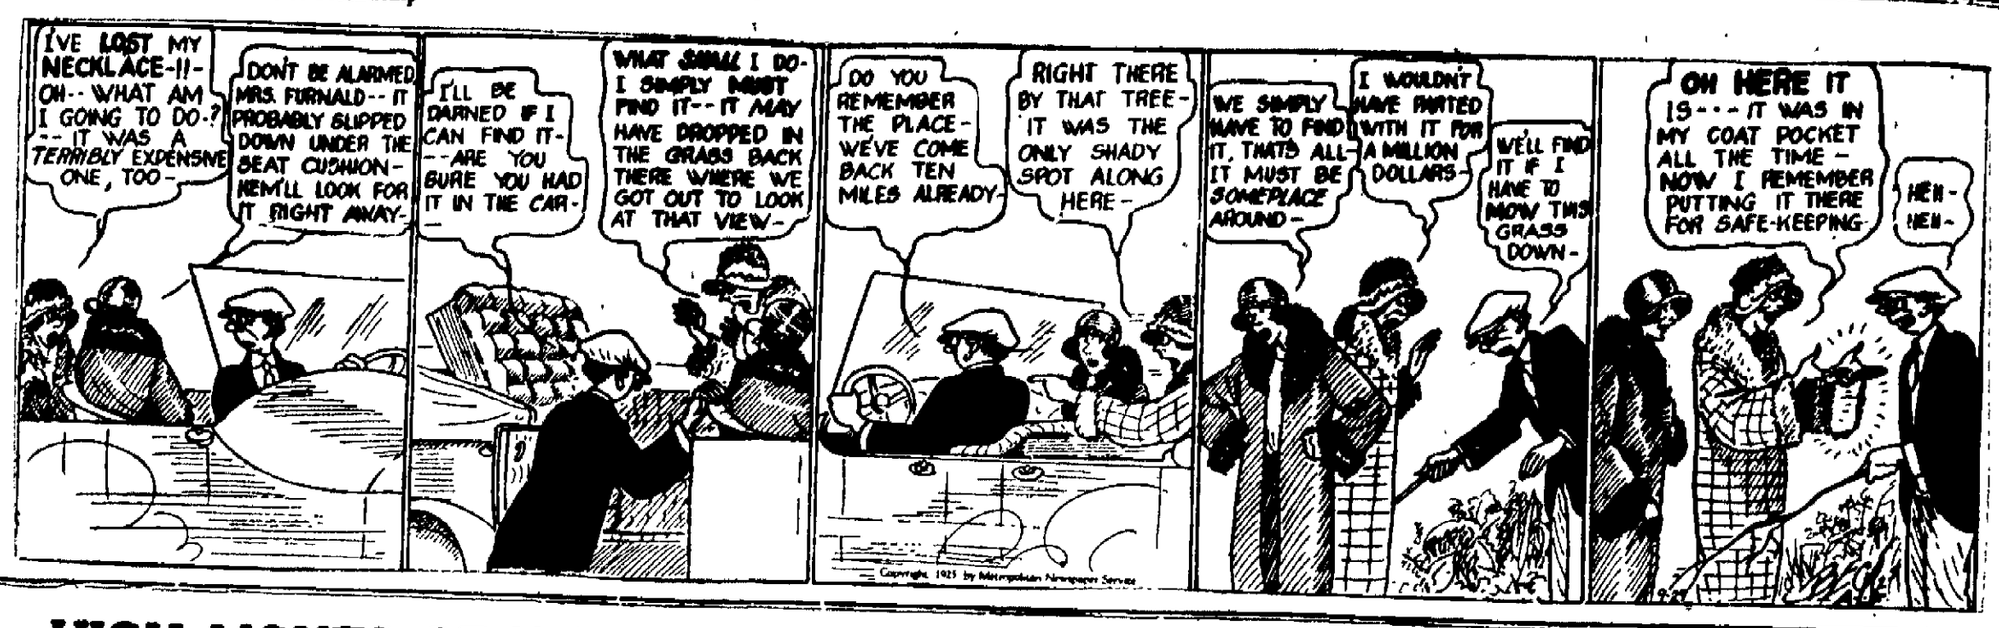

"Billy."

"Yes, I have heard of that," said Billy. "But you needn't be so conceited. In the first place of all there are many creatures in this zoo who have come from lands far away. They have had more interesting experiences than you have had. The zoo is filled with interesting animals. That is the most important thing about a zoo—to get as many animals from all over the world as possible.

"So you needn't be so proud, and besides we don't like a cross goat such as you are, any more than you care for us!"

GAS BUGGIES—The Acid Test of Friendship

HIGH LIGHTS OF HISTORY

The Battle of Long Island.

by J. CARROLL MANSFIELD

ON AUGUST 22ND, 1776, HOWE LANDED A MIGHTY FORCE ON LONG ISLAND, DETERMINED TO CRUSH THE SMALL AMERICAN ARMY THAT OPPOSED HIS ADVANCE ON NEW YORK.

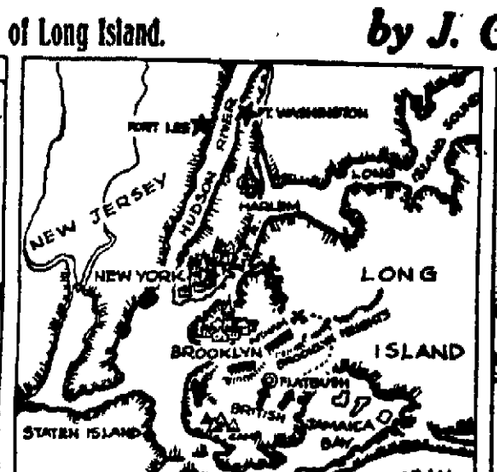

ON THE 27TH HOWE ORDERED HIS TROOPS TO ATTACK AND SENT THEM FORWARD IN THREE COLUMNS.

© 1925, BY THE McCLURE NEWSPAPER SYNDICATE.

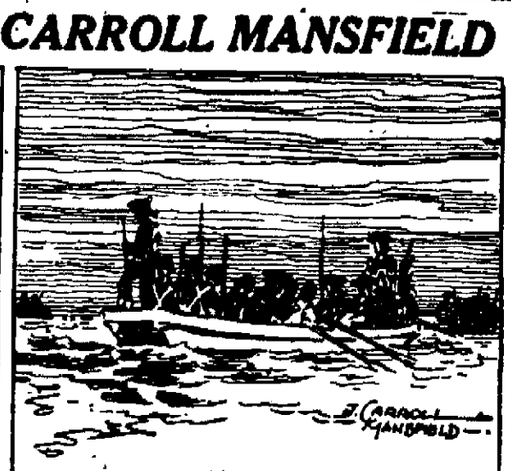

IN THE ABSENCE OF GENERAL GREENE WHO WAS ILL WITH FEVER, THE PATRIOTS WERE LED BY ISRAEL PUTNAM, A BRAVE SOLDIER BUT NOT WELL ENOUGH TRAINED TO COPE WITH THE VETERAN HOWE.—

ON THE NIGHT OF AUGUST 26TH THE RIGHT ATTACKING COLUMN OF THE BRITISH MARCHED AROUND THE LEFT WING OF THE AMERICANS AND IN THE MORNING ATTACKED THEM FROM THE REAR, DRIVING THEM TO BROOKLYN WITH A LOSS OF 1500 MEN.

THE ARMY OF PUTNAM WAS NOW IN A POSITION THAT IF THE BRITISH FLEET SAILED UP INTO THE EAST RIVER THE AMERICANS WOULD BE CAUGHT IN A HOPELESS TRAP ON LONG ISLAND.

WASHINGTON, HOWEVER, PROVED HIMSELF TO BE THE MASTER OF THE SITUATION

IN THE EARLY MORNING OF AUGUST 29TH, UNDER COVER OF A DENSE FOG, HE FERRIED THE TROOPS ACROSS THE RIVER TO SAFETY TO THE DISAPPOINTMENT OF HOWE, WHO HAD THOUGHT TO FORCE THE SURRENDER OF PUTNAM— TOMORROW— THE BRITISH IN NEW YORK.

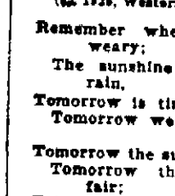

(©, 1925, Western Newspaper Union.)

Remember when heartsick and weary;
The sunshine comes after the rain,
Tomorrow is time to be cheery—
Tomorrow we take hope again.

Tomorrow the sun will be brighter
Tomorrow the skies will be fair;
Tomorrow our hearts will be lighter,
We'll cast aside sorrow and care.

PICKLING TIME

Some good housekeepers can the prime ripe tomatoes when at their best and later when the canning season is over and more leisure is found, make catsup, chili sauce, and various other tomato combinations.

Chili Sauce.—Take three quarts of canned tomatoes, add six chopped green peppers, four white onions also chopped, one cupful of sugar, half a cupful of salt, two cupfuls of vinegar and the following ground spices: One tablespoonful of cinnamon, one-eighth of a teaspoonful of cayenne pepper, half a teaspoonful of cloves and allspice mixed. Cook all together for three hours, then bottle for winter use. This makes a thick sauce. By adding more vinegar a good catsup may be made.

Bordeaux Sauce.—Take two gallons of cabbage, one gallon of green tomatoes, one dozen medium-sized white onions, six red sweet peppers, all chopped fine. Mix one ounce of cloves, one-fourth pound of white mustard seed, one ounce of celery seed, one and three-quarters pounds of sugar, one-half cupful of salt, and one gallon of vinegar. Drain the tomatoes; cabbage and tomatoes are measured after chopping. Remove the seeds from the peppers. Cloves and allspice are tied in small bags. Boil 20 minutes. This makes 12 quarts.

Pickled Onions.—Remove the outside skin but be careful not to break them. Soak 24 hours in strong salt water, wipe and put them into jars with pieces of red pepper. Allow enough vinegar to fill the jars and to each quart add a teaspoonful of mixed spices. Scald the vinegar with the spices, cool and fill the jars. Repeat for two days, cooling each time before pouring over the onions.

Senators Lead Pittsburgh in Their Infield

(By Davis J. Walsh.)

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Sept. 29.—Give the Senators the better of it in a comparison of infields; one can do no less.

Two very plausible quartets will deploy into action in the world's series, but one of them is merely good and the other comes uncommonly close to actual greatness. For all around strength, there have been few better combinations than that of the Washington Senators, exceptions being Chance, Evers, Tinker and Steinfeldt, of the Cubs; McInnes, Collins, Barry and Baker, of the Athletics, and Kelly, Frisch, Bancroft and Groh, of the Giants.

The Pirates, on the other hand, must admit certain defensive weaknesses on the right side of their infield. They had a better quartet last year, before Grantham and Moore relaced Maranville and Grimm, but not a better ball club in general. The famous mid-winter deal with the Cubs has been justified by the Pirates' success this season.

The trouble with the Pirate infield is that its strength is not evenly distributed. Wright and Traynor, on the left side, are great ball players. Moore and Grantham or McInniss on the opposite wing lack steadiness in one case and ground-covering ability in the other. McInnes, once a great first baseman, no longer can get about with sufficient agility to hold his own with Joe Judge, of Washington. Grantham simply lacks steadiness and experience at the position.

If Judge rounds to from his recent injuries the Senators will have a big edge at first base, particularly since Joe Harris, as an alternate, can be figured to hold his own with the rival first baseman.

At second base there is no defensive comparison between Moore and Stanley Harris. At shortstop it would be difficult to say whether Wright is a better workman than Peckinpaugh. If Peck's legs hold out—and they have done so pretty well this season—he is as good as the next and better than most.

At third base Traynor probably has an edge on Bluege, but so slight as to make it negligible. Bluege is a much underestimated ball player.

The Senators, therefore, have it on the Pirates in all around efficiency and steadiness, to say nothing of the important sector around second base, from which the double plays revolve. They also have the better of the infield reserve strength, with Johnny Rawlings out of the series. This department almost ruined the Senators in 1924 series but they are well heeled now.

In hitting alone do the Pirates excel. At the moment, their combination is outhitting the Senators in a league for league comparison by almost twenty per centage points. Yet the difference may count for little in the series.

Stanley Harris, for example, may be a .280 hitter through the season but that fails to show what he can and probably will do in the pinches. He is a great "money" hitter. So is Peckinpaugh and I might add Everett Scott, in a somewhat lesser degree.

MATCH-PLAY IN WOMEN'S GOLF TOURNEY

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 29.—Sunny skies with just a bit of tang in the air greeted the 32 surviving contestants in the Women's National Golf Tournament at match play was begun this morning on the St. Louis Country Club course. The course was in prime condition.

Practically all the tournament favorites came through the qualifying round.

Mrs. Alexa Sterling Frazer of Ottawa, the medalist with a 77, and Miss Dorothy Klotz of Chicago, who had 88 in the first round, were the first pair away today.

The champion, Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd of Philadelphia, who was three strokes higher than the medalist, was paired with Mrs. Jay S. Cassriel, Aurora, Ill., who took an 88 yesterday.

Other pairings were:

Miss Glenna Collett, Providence, R. I., a former champion, and Mrs. C. Fox of Philadelphia, the "grandmother" of tournaments, who yesterday had 88; Mrs. F. C. Letts, Chicago, vs. Mrs. F. Mulqueen, Toronto; Mrs. David Gaut, Memphis, vs. Steward Hanle, Detroit.

Assessor's Notice
Of Completion of Special Assessment.

Notice is hereby given that the Assessor of the City of Kingston has completed the Assessment of 75 per cent for Progress Street Sanitary Sewer, commencing at a point [illegible] feet from the intersection of Cornell Street and running thence through the said Progress Street for a distance of [illegible] feet to a connection with the existing sewer in Cornell Street, and that the same is filed in the office of the Assessor, in the City Hall, where the same may be seen by any person or persons interested therein, until Wednesday, September 30th next, and that on that day the Assessor will be at the City Hall from 9 o'clock a. m. to 4 o'clock p. m. to hear any person or persons who may deem themselves aggrieved thereby.

Dated this 19th day of September, 1925.

WILLIAM R. MARTIN,
Assessor

Pirates' Foes

Old Tom Zachary, he of the quiet ways, and Fred Marberry, one of the greatest relief pitchers the game has ever known, will play a prominent part in the Senators' defense against the Pirates.

Still Shines

Babe Adams, one of the oldest players in the big leagues, practically won a world's series for the Pirates in 1909. Now he is expected to start at least one game in the series against Washington and the fans are rooting for him and Johnson to hook up.

Veteran Ready

Joe Harris, tossed from pillar to post, is a gassed World War veteran, but with the Senators this year he has been a timely slugger and fielder. It is expected he will help out in the outfield, also at first base if Judge is injured.

Annual Turkey Dinner.

The annual turkey dinner of the Elmendorf Street Presbyterian Church will be held on December 9. Aprons and fancy articles suitable for Christmas gifts will be on sale during the afternoon and evening. Members of the congregation and friends are reminded to reserve that date to enjoy the First Presbyterian turkey dinner.

K.H.S. Team Won Tennis Doubles

Kingston High School will be represented in the state tennis tournament which is to be held this coming Friday and Saturday at Hamilton College.

The Maroon and White team was successful in the doubles at St. Stephen's College Saturday in defeating Goshen's team and consequently will make a bid for the state championship this week end at Hamilton College.

Baylor and Fowler of the K. H. S. team, entered in the doubles and easily defeated the Goshen High School representatives by the score of 6-2 and 6-0. Goshen took the lead at the beginning of the first set but the local pair came in with a strong finish and won every game following.

In the singles however, the local school was not so successful. Irwin, the Kingston entry in this branch, being defeated by Fowler of Pleasantville High School by the score of 6-0 and 6-1. However, Irwin first defeated Fletcher of Goshen High School by a score of 6-3 and 6-1. Irwin exhibited very steady playing but was finally overcome by Fowler, the Westchester county champion.

Tagging Major League Bases

Babe Ruth smacked his 23rd and 24th homers, Jess Doyle behaved as no pitcher is expected to do in emulation of Mr. Ruth and Combs passed the 200 mark in hits while the Yanks and Tigers divided a double-header, the first to the Tigers, 6 to 2, and the second to the Yanks 7 to 6.

The Giants treated three pitchers shamefully in the eighth inning and passed the Dodgers to win 9 to 7.

Bunching hits on Genewich in the eighth, the Cards closed the season with a 4 to 1 victory over the Braves. Manager Hornsby hurt a toe in practice and was unable to play, but finished the season topping the National League batters, with .403.

EXPECT DEMPSEY AND WILLS TO SIGN TODAY

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

South Bend, Ind., Sept. 29.—Unless there has been a change of heart over night, Champion Jack Dempsey and Harry Wills, his negro challenger, will sign articles for a 1926 fight involving the heavyweight championship of the world today.

An announcement to this effect was made by Dempsey's secretary, Rob Roy Benton, after conferences lasting five hours between the champion, Paddy Mullins, Wills's manager, Andrew Weisberg, local hotel man and others in a syndicate that is promoting the match.

The papers probably will be signed somewhere on the Michigan side of the state line.

Fifty Speakers at State Convention

They Will Discuss Subjects in Which 6,000 Sunday Schools of New York State Are Interested in the State Meet at Binghamton, October 14-16.

New York state is not the largest Sunday-school state in the Union, although the largest in population. Pennsylvania has 12,000 schools; Ohio 8,500, and the Empire State 6,000. These 6,000 schools are turning their eyes now to Binghamton, where will be held on October 14-16, the biggest state convention in the interest of religious education ever held in New York state.

Religious education has entered upon a new day, in which its program is carried, not only on Sunday, but into the week day through community training schools, high school credit for Bible study, summer schools for leadership training, and the application of modern educational principles to the program of Sunday schools. The state convention program, with a fine appreciation of the importance of the small school, as well as the needs of the large school, will abound in the consideration of the above phases of religious education.

From New York's 6,000 Sunday-schools there promises to come a delegation of not less than 3,000 to listen to an array of talent which includes more than fifty speakers, many of whom are of national reputation.

Realizing the importance and probably size of this convention, Binghamton has a large local committee with numerous sub-committees, which are making preparations for the entertainment and comfort of the convention. The five mass sessions of the convention will be largely of an inspirational character, and the numerous specialization conferences will present the institute features of the program. The music will be under the direction of Dr. Earl E. Harper of Auburndale, Mass., who attracted great attention as the song leader and music director at the Methodist General Conference held in Springfield, Mass., in 1924.

Any Sunday-school worker or religious educational leader, including parents of children and young people, can attend the convention and register as a delegate or visitor by paying the enrollment fee. Such enrollment carries with it the privileges and perquisites of the convention, which include a souvenir program, convention hymnal and a badge of admission which entitles the holder to a seat in the convention sessions and admission to all specialization periods.

Programs and announcements are ready and may be secured without charge by applying to the New York State Sunday School Association, 80 Howard street, Albany, N. Y.

Shortens Tongue

Doctors at the Kyushu (Japan) Imperial university are puzzled by a disease that causes the shortening of women's tongues. For two years Miss Aida Toril, eighteen, has been affected by the disease. She was taken to the clinic at the university where an operation on the tip of her tongue seemed to check the shrinking for a while.

Graceful Folds Add an Extra Flare to Hemline

A charming illustration of the new mode is this fur-trimmed coat, in which the "back treatment" is used very effectively. Graceful folds, undulating lines break the flat surface of the back of the coat and add an extra flare to the hemline.

Things to Know About Beading on Your Frock

Bead-trimming presents a problem, and the woman who is addicted to beads must prepare herself for the worst—and therefore avert it—by a little common sense in selection of the bead-trimmed gown or waist, in the first place; and by judicious watchfulness and care afterwards.

The kinds generally used on dresses are the plain steel, jet and dyed beads. Jet and steel are the most expensive. The glass beads which have their color right in the glass itself are more expensive than the ones which have the color only on the inside. In buying colored beads, make sure you are getting an excellent quality, otherwise you may find the color "turning," or perhaps wearing off on your dress.

If you can get a gown on which the beads are sewed on by hand, they will stay much better, but you pay more. Medium-priced dresses have them put on by machine, but there is a difference even there. Some have a very fine lock-stitching, while others are attached with coarse thread and long stitches which make holes in the material and cause the dress to look shoddy and cheap. The difference can be detected by examining the work on the wrong side. Heavy beads on sheer goods are likely to tear through the material where the large holes were made in stitching them on. Each time after wearing the garment it is advisable to look it over, and if any bead is loose, to secure it at once. Otherwise the beads keep dropping off, and soon your whole design is ruined. Care must be used in pressing a beaded garment, it should be done on Turkish towels, to make sure that the beads do not cut the cloth.

And remember, if you prize your peace of mind, do not select a dress with many beads on the skirt where you will have to sit on them, or over the shoulders where they will cause discomfort when resting against the back of a chair.

Crepes and Velvets to Take Place of Chiffon

Delicate colors, fluttering draperies, skirts of youthful brevity, the absence of sleeves—these are salient points which distinguished the newest dance frocks of chiffon that in their elusive charm are infinitely more delightful and flattering than the most elaborate frocks of other days.

Transparent materials at the moment have the most important place in evening modes, but that the winter has other things in store is made quite evident by a study of advance models. Flat crepe, crepe de chine, silk velvet, printed velvet and brocaded velvet are slated for a vogue, according to recent word from Paris. In the collections of the most important American couturiers and designers these materials are prominently featured.

Orchid and delicate greens for evening, soft browns, rich blues, bottle greens and the warm tones of beige for day are colors that apparently will be much in evidence in the modes of the coming season.

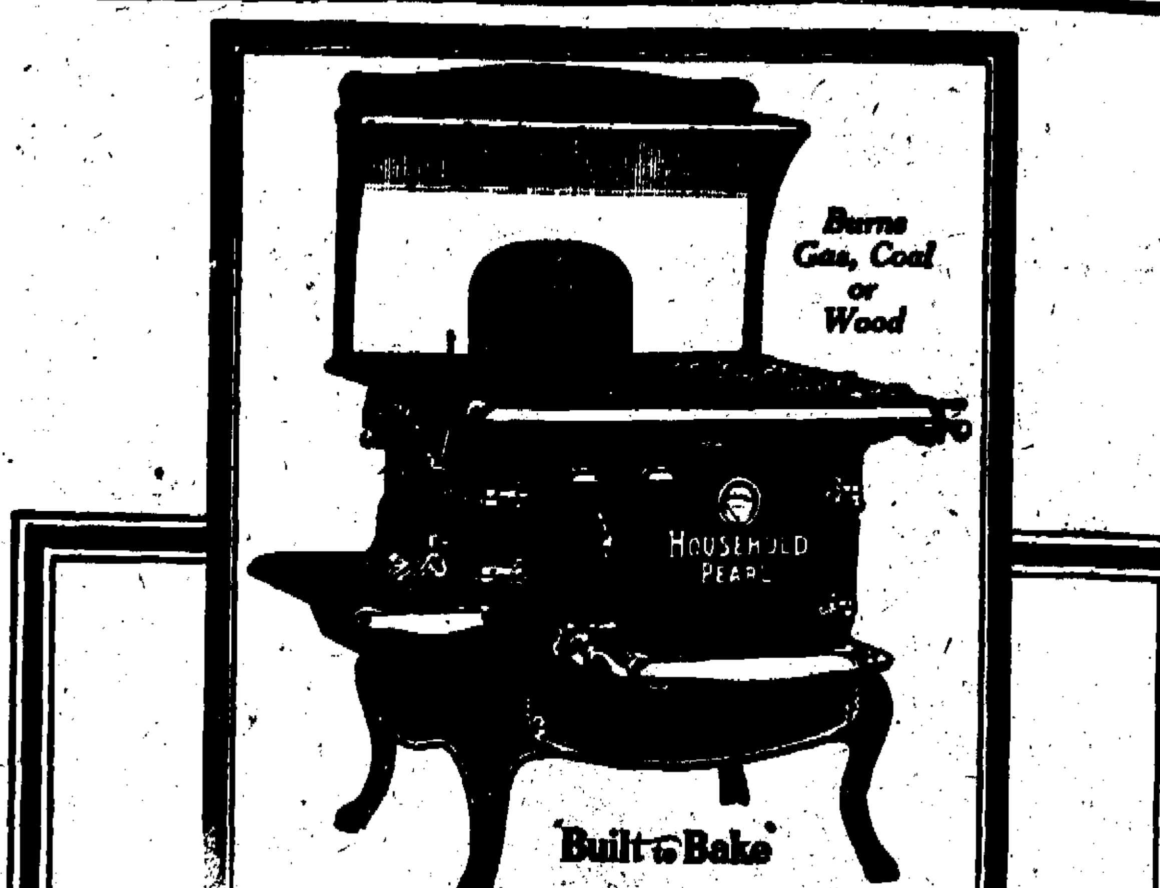

There is noticeable also a tendency to greater formality than has appeared in the modes for several seasons. While the flapper type of dress appears in new and charming interpretation it will not be the style followed by every woman regardless of her age, type or appearance.

Black and White Combined

A new fashion consists of wearing a long hand-made tunic of heavy white georgette over a slip of black satin.

Story of Woolens

In the time of Julius Caesar, woolen cloth was a commercial commodity. In the reign of Charles II of England all persons had to be buried in woolens or pay a penalty equivalent to $25 in our money.

Stick to Quality When Buying a Range

THERE are many substitutes for quality but there never has yet been invented a real substitute for satisfaction. Don't let a low price tag on a shoddy range fool your better judgment. Stick to quality.

Eleanor Gunn Says

HEAVY HEMLINES ARE GENERALLY ACCEPTED AND ACHIEVED IN MANY WAYS

At the risk of becoming monotonous, it must again be repeated that velvet is of premier importance this season. One of the most interesting features of its use is, however, that it has become a tremendous trimming factor as well as the basic material of other costumes.

A georgette or chiffon frock, rather heavily trimmed with velvet, wins approval particularly in intense tones of blue, wine reds, or warm browns—the difference in tone of velvet and crepe usually supplying sufficient color contrast. One of the strongest style features of the season is the practice of employing contrasting materials and colors—this even applying to millinery.

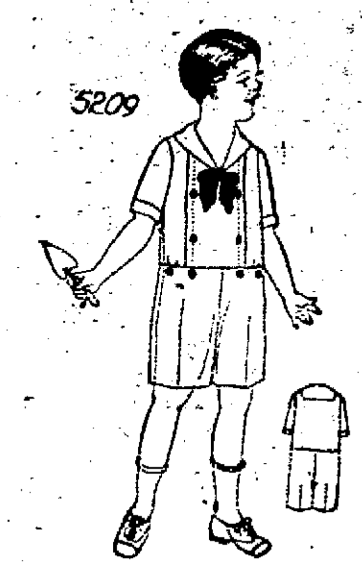

Heavy at the Hem—Is One of the Rules of the Day.

Velvet applique has developed into one of the leading trimming ideas and velvet ribbon ruches, pleated or otherwise applied, is in great demand to weight the hemline—a rather necessary precaution with skirts all but knee length and decidedly wide.

The georgette dress is a serious rival to the heavier crepe one and both have a formidable rival in satin and velvet. The acceptance of velvet, and its sister-fabric, velveteen, has been unanimous—curiously enough for the frock of utility as well as that for formal wear. The movement to bring about a demand for cloth frocks seems likely to bear fruit, largely because of the attractive woolens which are to be had this season—certainly there is plenty of wool jersey about, not all worn by the younger set.

Another example of Series 80 low upkeep cost

A typical instance of Series 80 operating economy is the very low charge for cleaning carbon and grinding valves.

A special multiple valve-lifter removes six valves in one operation, or in one-sixth the usual time. An electric valve grinding and cutting tool refaces the valve far more accurately than is possible by hand, and does it in one-fourth the time. Because of the saving in time, the charge for occasional valve grinding and carbon cleaning in the Pierce-Arrow Series 80 is only $13.10.

Motorists Now Class Conscious

A. A. A. Finds Need For Organization Developed By Tax Inroads: Legislative Restrictions and Other Nuisances Such as Speed Traps and Gyp Clubs.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 29.—One of the noteworthy features of a survey recently conducted by the American Automobile Association is the indications it gave that the motorists of America are becoming more and more class conscious and are organizing to protect themselves against tax inroads, legislative restrictions and a hundred and one other harassing nuisances.

The survey disclosed that while the number of new passenger car owners is increasing at the rate of approximately 150,000 a month, at least 12,000 of these are joining motor clubs affiliated under the A. A. A. emblem.

Because of tax inroads, legislative restrictions, activities of Gyp clubs mulcting automobile owners, operation of speed traps for revenue and other nuisances, the motorists are finding that they cannot protect themselves by playing a lone hand game, the A. A. A. declares.

At the same time, according to Thomas P. Henry, President of the Association the movement towards organization is being accelerated by the growing need for cooperation to secure better roads, simplified traffic, greater safety on the highways, reduced cost of motoring and greater convenience in touring.

"This tendency among motorists to cooperate and organize, not at the expense of other citizens, but to relieve the automobile from harassing restrictions and to enhance its value as an adjunct of business and pleasure is the most hopeful sign of progress in motordom today," President Henry said.

"Too many motorists are trying to be their own automobile welfare organization," he continued. "It is just about as logical as tryng to be one's own insurer against car loss by fire, theft or collision."

Membership in A. A. A. motor clubs, he points out, means indirect representation in all conferences between the prominent automotive associations. Among the associations of the automobile industry, with which the A. A. A. clubs frequently cooperate for the betterment of touring, taxation, traffic, safety and other important matters pertaining to the regulation of the automobile are the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, the National Automobile Dealers' Association, the Motor and Accessory Manufacturers' Association, the Rubber Association of America, the Society of Automotive Engineers, the Motor Vehicle Conference Committee, the Automotive Equipment Association, the Automobile Body Builders Association and the Trailer Manufacturers Association of America.

"The modern motorist cannot afford to be his own automobile club any more than he can afford to drive exactly as he pleases or assume that his own fists are the only police protection he needs," Mr. Henry contends. "It is the growing knowledge of this fact that is enabling motor club membership increase to exceed the rate of increase in registrations. Membership of the A. A. A. has been increasing at the highest rate in its long history of almost a quarter century.

"This is having an important influence on motoring conditions, for it means that the percentage of car owners who cooperate with each other is rapidly increasing. An even more important phase of the subject is the fact that while the increase in registration would seem to indicate an influx of new motorists, the increased registration is largely the result of car owners of several years' standing in process of buying cars to supplement those which they are already using. Motorists who are joining the automobile clubs are those who find club membership vitally necessary the more experienced they become in car ownership.

"When a motorist has two cars the matter of adverse legislation, unfair taxation, inadequate roads and unsafe traffic means a great deal more to him. He soon sees the need for cooperation, and he naturally seeks cooperation, not merely with other motorists, but with those officials and associations which can be reached only through membership in the national car-owner organization. That these points are coming to light and are being taken up in earnest by all motordom is well demonstrated by the rapid increase in A. A. A. membership and the recent increase in member clubs which have brought the total to the mark.

To Train Students In Evangelization

Lutheran Synod Proposes Special Seminary Courses—Votes for Merger—Buffalo Synod Wants to Join If Merger Is Effective.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Sept. 29.—(Special).—Students at two Lutheran Joint Synod of Ohio theological seminaries will be offered training in evangelization by the new Commission on Evangelization, according to a recommendation of the commission adopted by the 84th annual convention of the Eastern District of the synod meeting here in St. Peter's Church. The institutions mentioned are Luther Seminary, St. Paul, Minn., and Capital University Theological Seminary, Columbus, Ohio. Other recommendations adopted will create a special "Evangelization Sunday" in all congregations of the Joint Synod throughout the country on the first Sunday after Epiphany, will make the entire season of Lent a special one for the ingathering of souls, and will establish a circulating library of books on evangelization for pastors, with the additional publication of a series of tracts on the subject.

The convention also concerned itself with the intersynodical "Chicago Theses" on the "Doctrine of Conversion and Election Briefly Stated," adopting all thirteen of the items with occasional slight alterations in the wording of the translation.

The proposal for organic union of the Joint Synod of Ohio with the Iowa Lutheran Synod received unanimous approval, and the announcement was made from the convention floor that the Buffalo Synod has asked privilege of joining with the other two in case the Ohio-Iowa merger is carried through as planned.

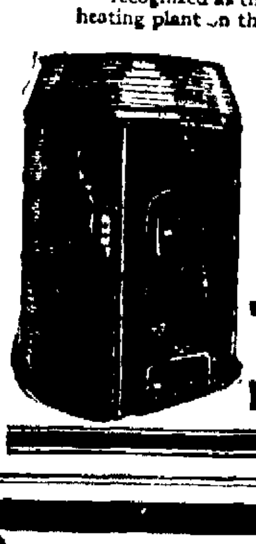

The Eastern District elected Rev. F. B. Hax, Massilon, O., western vice president; Rev. C. A. D. Freseman, Baltimore, Md., eastern vice-president; Rev. C. F. W. Brecht, Chicora, Pa., treasurer; Rev. E. H. Meuser, Washington, D. C., statistician; Rev. F. G. Alpers, Elm Grove, W. Va., board of aids collecor; and Rev. George B. Schmidt, Baltimore, Md., chaplain. Rev G. F. Hein, Corapolis, Pa., Rev. G. E. Lenski, Washington, D. C., and Rev. R. H. Long, Pittsburgh, Pa., were elected to the executive committee.

CURRENT OFFERINGS AT THE THEATERS

Monday's audience at the Kingston Opera House let go their emotions and thrilled to the excitement that was rife in "Black Cyclone" the Hal Roach-Pathe production featuring Rex, the wild horse. The big kicks in "Black Cyclone" are supplied by three fierce battles between the stallions for leadership. In two of them the evil eyed Killer is triumphant, but in the third Rex emerges from battle triumphant. The excitement does not end with these episodes. Rex kicks a half dozen wolves to ignominous defeat, and faces a snarling, leaping puma in a battle to death. It will close its engagement tonight at seven and nine. The other subjects include a late news reel, West Wind, a special scenic, and a whirlwind educational comedy. Wednesday evening the musical comedy, "My China Doll" will be staged.

"Her Sister From Paris" her new starring comedy-drama of domestic life, opened at the Keeney Theater Monday for three days. The opening scenes of the story reveal Constance as a patient, meek and loving little wife whose spouse is an author of charming stories. But she insists on feeding him doughnuts when he's thinking of moonlight and roses and lovely romance, and so they have a family tiff. But Constance never gives up. She disguises herself as her madcap sister from Paris, reputed to be a charmer of hearts. In this guise she lures her husband away from the family fireside and persuades him to elope with her. The rest of the story reveals a new method of winning a husband's love.

At the Auditorium this evening, "Poisoned Paradise," with Kenneth Harlen, Raymond Griffith, Clara Bow and Carmel Myers will be screened.

The Dan-Fitch Minstrels is performing at the Orpheum Theater tonight and Wednesday. The feature picture tonight is "Mad Marriage," with Rosemary Davis.

Why, Indeed!

When Jones came home one evening his wife met him at the gate and exclaimed, "It's lovely evening. Let's get up a picnic!" Jones looked hopefully at the sky, but there was not a cloud in sight coming to his rescue. "What do you say?' persisted Mrs. Jones. The poor man was tired, the evening was warm, but he had to say something. He said, "Why get up a picnic? We haven't any enemies."

Rhinebeck Estate Over $10,000,000

The will of Fanny Kendall Crosby, of Rhinebeck, who died several weeks ago, was admitted to probate by Surrogate Daniel J. Gleason at Poughkeepsie on Monday. The estate is estimated to total at least $10,000,000 although in the petition for probate the only figures given, place it in "excess of $10,000 real and $10,000 personal."

The only legatees are Margaret Eleanor, wife of William Charles Arcedeckne Vanneck, Earl of Huntingfield, and Maunsell Schieffelin Crosby, daughter and son of the deceased. The principal part of the estate consists of New York city property, among them being the old Daley Theater, which alone is valued at $1,000,000 and gives a net return to the estate of $30,000 a year for ground rent alone.

The beautiful estate of "Grasmere," the Crosby home at Rhinebeck, passes to the son as well as a one-sixth undivided part of the estate of Henry Maunsell Schieffelin, father of Mrs. Crosby. In addition he is made the residuary legatee, which besides the real estate in this county provides for an additional undivided interest in her father's estate.

The will states that prior to the marriage of her daughter to the Earl of Huntingfield, or on December 21, 1912, "In connection with the intended marriage, one-half of the undivided interest in the estate of Maunsell Schieffelin was transferred to Margaret Eleanor Crosby," while an agreement was made with the son that the other undivded interest was to be held intact for him at the mother's death.

The personal property, such as jewelry, laces, and the "contents of a trunk, kept in the Harriman Bank, New York city, are given to the daughter. Another gift mentioned is that of a miniature of Maunsell Schieffelin, painted by General Cunningham which also goes to the daughter.

Outrageous

Little Margaret had been told not to leave her bicycle outside the church when she used to go to Sunday school. "You see," explained her mother, 'lots of bikes are stolen' here in t wn." "Why," exclaimed Margaret, "burglars don't burgle on Sunday, do they?"

MRS. OSTRICH TO MARKET

MRS. OSTRICH was troubled. Something was wrong with the children. Her fourteen beautiful eggs, like ivory globes, had hatched into fourteen lively young birds. They had eaten gravel for several days after they came out of the shell, which all ostrich mothers know is the best thing for their young stomachs, but after that they didn't seem to thrive. Father Ostrich had brought them the tenderest leaves and twigs, and even some of those wonderful watermelons which grow on the edge of the desert, but nothing agreed with them.

"What's to be done, my dear?" roared Father Ostrich in his loud, important voice.

"Well, I don't know, Father," said Mother Ostrich, "but it does seem to me as if I could find something which would be good for the children. I don't believe you looked far and wide. I shall go a long distance away today. I am a faster runner than a horse, so it will be easy."

"Now, Father, Don't Be Cross," Said Mrs. Ostrich.

"I don't know how far you'll go," said Father Ostrich a bit peevishly, for he didn't like Mrs. Ostrich's criticism, "but I'm sure you'll go wide if you go around in circles as usual. And mind, don't get frightened and hide your head in the sand!"

"Now, Father, don't be cross," said Mrs. Ostrich. "You have the same bad habits that I have, you know. Good-by, I'll be back before dark," and she trotted away over the desert, her legs moving so fast that her toes seemed scarcely to touch the ground.

"I'll have to go toward those trees and growing things over there," thought she. "There's nothing here on the desert fit for my babies to eat." And she run so fast that all at once she found herself in the thick, deep jungle.

"Now, I wonder," she said aloud, looking up, "if that breadfruit would be to the children's taste."

"It looks good to me," said a small merry voice which seemed to come from right under Mrs. Ostrich's very toes. "But of course I don't know for whom you are marketing."

"Dear me," snapped Mrs. Ostrich in surprise and alarm, "dear me, who's interfering now?"

"It's only Cheerups, Madam, and I thought perhaps I could help you pick out your fruit for breakfast, as you were a little uncertain," said the voice.

"Well, well, this is luck," cried Mrs. Ostrich, looking down at Cheerups from her eight feet of height, and winking and blinking her great eyes with their long lashes. "To think that I should run right into you, Mr. Cheerups. Why, all the Desert and Jungle Folks are talking about you and your wise words and your wonderful ways. Here I am in a terrible tangle, and you appear right in front of me to unravel it. Miraculous, I say, simply miraculous!"

"First, please tell me who you are," smiled Cheerups, "and what is your trouble. I surely don't deserve the fame you speak of, but I shall be very glad to help you if I can."

"Oh, thank you, Mr. Cheerups; you are so kind. You see, I am Mrs. Ostrich and I have at home fourteen as handsome little Ostrich babies as you could see any day in a twenty-mile run."

"But I couldn't run twenty miles," cried Cheerups.

"Oh, excuse me," replied Mrs. Ostrich. "I forgot that you hadn't the long-distance apparatus," and she looked proudly at her tall, strong legs. "Well, my babies had their gravel meals for two or three days, as was right and proper, and then they didn't seem to like the leaves and vegetables which Father Ostrich brought them. We just can't find anything they will eat. And if they don't eat, they will die. Oh, Mr. Cheerups, I'm almost distracted!"

"Don't be anxious, Mrs. Ostrich, I beg of you," said Cheerups in a tone full of kindness. "I have a plan. Just lay a few extra eggs outside the nest and feed the wee birdlings on them until they are old enough to eat other things. And when you hatch the next brood, you might lay the extra eggs first, so the babies' breakfast will be all ready and waiting for them when they come."

"That's a splendid idea," cried Mother Ostrich. "Thank you a thousand times, Mr. Cheerups; I'll do just as you say," and off she ran at top speed toward home. Ever since, Mrs. Ostrich has followed Cheerups' advice with success.

"What's in a Name?"

By MILDRED MARSHALL

Facts about your name: its history; meaning, whence it was derived; significance; your lucky day, lucky jewel

VIOLA

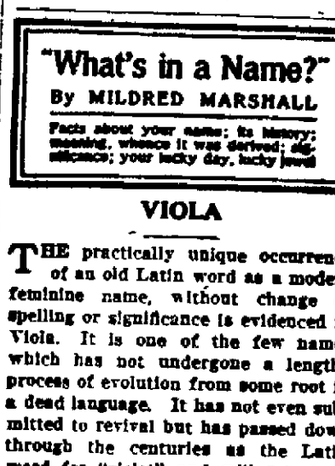

THE practically unique occurrence of an old Latin word as a modern feminine name, without change of spelling or significance is evidenced in Viola. It is one of the few names which has not undergone a lengthy process of evolution from some root in a dead language. It has not even submitted to revival but has passed down through the centuries as the Latin word for "violet" and will remain a feminine proper name signifying violet to the end of time.

There are many instances of the use of Violet in England and Scotland. There is the equivalent Yolande in France and also Violetta. But in Italy, where the Viola arose, there is no record of its having been used as a proper name.

The common opinion of etymologists seems to be that it was a fanciful name imported from Italy by Shakespeare and bestowed upon one of his heroines in "Twelfth Night." But however it may be, the Viola who loved Orsino endeared the name in English hearts and it has continued with great popularity ever since the time of Shakespeare.

The amethyst is the talismanic gem assigned to Viola. It promises her success in love and freedom from vexation. Friday is her lucky day and 3 her lucky number.

WHO SAID

"Man is to man either god or a wolf."

ERESIDERIUS ERASMUS, the author of the above quotation, was born at Rotterdam, Holland, in the year 1467. His real name was Gerard, but this he changed—a practice which was greatly in vogue in his day.

Erasmus had been left an orphan at an early age, and the efforts of his guardians were largely responsible for his entering a monastery and swearing he would become a priest. This determination he later relinquished, and by special dispensation from the pope at Rome was relieved from his monastic vows.

In the year 1492—the year that Columbus first set foot on the shores of the new world—Erasmus left his home in Holland and, with the permission of the bishop of Chambray, who was in charge of the monastery where the lad was living, traveled to Paris. There he studied theology and literature and there he formed acquaintance with many wealthy Englishmen whose instructor he became. One of these—Lord Mountjoy—was so impressed with the monk, and became so great an admirer of his, that he settled on him a life-long pension.

In 1497 Erasmus accompanied Lord Mountjoy to England, where he was graciously received by the king and where his learning secured him considerable attention from the men of letters of that country. Soon after Erasmus returned to the continent and secured the dispensation from the pope relieving him of his monastic vows. Upon obtaining this release, he published several of his works. In 1510 he again returned to England where he was given a professorship at Cambridge. In 1514 he returned to the continent where he lived until death overtook him in 1536.

Erasmus was easily one of the most notable scholars of his day and to him can be given much credit for the reviving of scholarship in that age. He attacked the disorders of monasticism and superstition and was active in the reformation, although he was scored by Luther for lukewarmness. The "Praise of Folly" is, perhaps, his best work.—Wayne B. McIlhenny.

Financial and Commercial

By Telegraph to The Freeman

New York, Sept. 29.—The spectacular forward movement in a few motor stocks continued in full force today. Bearish traders were swept aside by a bullish clique which appears to have the market in good control.

Little attention was paid to the five per cent call money rate which represented nothing more than preparation for the October settlements at the banks.

The bulls were encouraged by the mere buoyant situation in United States Steel, which sold at 121½, up three points from Monday's low. American Can showed its ability to recover nearly eight points after the directors had again declined to take any special action with respect to extra cash or stock dividends. General Baking added another 11 points to yesterday's 11 point advance. American Smelting, Fleischmanns and other high priced industrials sold upward one to four points. Rumors of a possible corner in Chrysler Common, similar to the Stutz Motor incident a few years back, riveted attention on that stock. There are only 677,000 shares of common stock outstanding, of which less than half must necessarily be available for market trading, and daily sales of late have exceeded 60,000 shares. Chrysler's new top price was only a few points below 200 while Hudson gained six points more and General Motors two.

Atlantic Coast Line led a moderate rally in the railroad stocks. The heralded move in oil stocks did not make its appearance and most of the copper, independent steel, equipment and specialty stocks were inactive.

The rise in call rate to 5½ per cent in the fourth hour had the effect of crowding market activities in a smaller number of stocks.

B. M. Charchian having turned in the greatest amount of pledges was brought to the front and all other team captains stood, one hand on the heart to denote humiliation and the other on the stomach to denote agony, and repeated in chorus "We salute you, Oh our superior."

This ceremony, and some peppy singing by the Estey Mabels, were the only deviation from the repressed and funereal manner in which the meeting was conducted by the professional campaigner sent here from afar to conduct the campaign.

An auspicious start was given the "square deal for Kingston boys" campaign when 125 of Kingston's best men and a live wire bunch of Y. W. C. A. girls gathered at the workers' opening diner conference to receive their final instructions and select their prospects. A fine spirit pervaded the gathering though no one attempted to conceal the fact that this is destined to be a very difficult campaign. Short addresses by the general chairman, Charles Ramsey and H. H. Flemming were received with the kind of attention indicating sincerity of purpose on the part of the audience. Fighting spirit was developed and the workers eagerly sought among the prospect cards for their allotted quota of six friends to be canvassed in behalf of the boys.

Old campaigners expressed themselves as surprised with the strength of the organization developed by following the new plan of organizing in units of five. The general chairman, Charles Ramsey, first enlisted five division leaders, A. J. Burns, W. H. Niles, C. S. Rowland, G. E. Lowe, and J. R. Millard. These division leaders in turn each enlisted five team captains, who each enlisted five workers.

"Estey Mabels" Get Busy.

A surprise for the workers was sprung when Division Leader Niles brought in a team composed of Y. W. C. A. women, led by Miss Estey, their general secretary, as team captain. These girls put pep into the gathering with songs and yells, and were promptly christened the "Estey Mabels." This led to a new name for the fraternity of go-getters in this campaign, which has been named "The Ancient and Honorable Order of Estey Mabels." Fellowship in this order is won by turning in a total of $250 during the campaign, the decorations being a gold ribbon for the first $250 and a blue ribbon for a second $250, this being the highest honor attainable. Captain Estey has been commissioned to bestow these decorations—with "full French ceremony" if she so elects. Coming in this way it is expected that these decorations will be the more eagerly sought by young and old.

Hi-Y Boys Maintain Tradition.

Another extra special team is that composed of Hi-Y boys, led by Captain Charles H. Ashley. In many campaigns the Hi-Y team makes many of the teams of older men "take their dust" and these boys have indicated a willingness to maintain this tradition of the Hi-Y.

At the close of the Monday evening meeting General Secretary Forster announced that there will be a devotional meeting each morning at nine o'clock at the "Y" and invited any of the workers who can do so to attend these meetings. The first of these meetings Tuesday morning was led by Carl Baer of the National Council of Young Men's Christian Association, who emphasized the fact that men who are working with God have no right or reason to expect anything less than complete success in their work.

Bible for "Soldiers"

The "Soldier's Bible," prepared by Cromwell for his army, presents a great contrast in size to the little khaki volume issued to the British soldiers in the World war. Yet it contains extracts which "doe shew the qualifications of his inner man, that is a souldier to fight the Lord's battels both before he fight in the field, and after the fight."

Horace Boice, school tax collector of District No. 8, town of Ulster, R. F. D. No. 2, Kingston, is ready to receive taxes for the next 30 days at one per cent, 30 days after at five per cent. Dated, September 28, 1925.

Vast Store of Nectar That Is Unproductive

Apiculture, or bee-keeping, is one of the few branches of agriculture that does not tend to exhaust the soil. The account with the honey crop therefore does not include the usual item, "cost of fertilizer," says a report in the New York Times.

The nectar produced in the flowers is wasted unless gathered by bees or similar insects. It has been conservatively estimated that not over one-tenth of all the nectar produced in the United States is actually harvested. The amount that goes to waste in a dozen counties near New York city is over 1,500,000 pounds.

The study of the honey bee and bee-keeping methods is becoming more popular, and to satisfy those desirous of knowing more about this subject short courses are being offered in several of the leading schools and colleges, among them Columbia university. Many people living in the suburbs cannot go in for poultry raising, gardening, etc., because of lack of space. For them a few hives of bees should afford an interesting and remunerative enterprise.

World Illuminated by Spread of the Bible

A man from Corea arrived recently in London with his two sons. He could not speak a word of English, but he showed an address inside a little Bible and was guided to the Bible house, in Queen Victoria street. Then he poured out a heap of money on a table and pointed to his two sons. When an interpreter was found, writes a London correspondent of the Christian Science Monitor, the man related how he knew of nothing else in England but the place which had sent his Bible to him in Corea, and he had come there with his sons because he wanted them to be educated as Christians.

In the windows of the Bible house are Bibles which show the link with little peoples and great peoples all over the world. Because of this work, the Bible, or parts of the Bible, are printed in 572 languages today. By reason of such efforts the Gospel has been published in a fresh language every six weeks for the last ten years.

New Mechanical Marvel

Cigars have been sorted by hand according to color. The process was slow, expensive and inaccurate. To eliminate the hand sorter a machine was invented and is now in use. It recognizes 22 shades of brown in the cigar wrappers, puts each by itself and does it all at a rate better than one a second. Some of the principles of radio and photography are used, but the description is too technical for us laymen. The machine is called a triumph of science. Most of us could not understand how it distinguishes with fine shades when the average eye cannot do it.

The machine is another development in mechanical invention. Like the linotype, it displays an "intelligence" almost beyond belief. Perhaps if the inventors keep working they eventually will create a machine with "superhuman intelligence" that can be placed behind the automobile steering wheels and prevent some of the grade-crossing accidents.—New Orleans Item.

Stripping Cork Tree

If it is done properly, the commercial value of the cork is improved by stripping a tree of its bark. A cork tree is stripped for the first time when it is about twenty years old. This virgin cork is rough and coarse. Successive layers of bark are taken at intervals of eight or ten years. This cork is finer. The work of stripping must be done carefully, as any injury to the delicate inner skin of the tree results in the permanent stoppage of growth of cork at that spot.

Discover Communism Is Taught in Schools

Investigation is being made of a report that schools for training communistic workers and missionaries are being conducted in this country, according to announcement made recently by Frank Clay Cross, national director of the Americanism commission of the American Legion. Such schools have been conducted at several localities over the country during the present summer, reports laid before the Legion commission indicate.

A special subcommittee was appointed to carry on the investigation for the commission. Its members are: Frank Sieh, Aberdeen, S. D., chairman; John B. Jessup, Wilmington, Del, and John Bullington, Belleville, Ill.

One school is the center of a special investigation by the committee. Fifty students are said to have been in training at this school, to be sent back to their communities and schools to spread communistic propaganda. The students are reported to have come from three states. That the doctrines of communism are being taught, Hayes, the instructor, admitted. Raising of the red flag in the United States is being openly advocated, according to reports "The Constitution of the United States is the product of fraud," is a part of the curriculum of the Red schools.

Reports to the commission indicated that Soviet Russia has recently sent into the United States $300,000 for communistic propaganda. The commission reaffirmed its opposition to the Bolshevist regime in Russia by the government of the United States.

Four Cities Seeking National Conventions

Florida wants the 1926 national convention of the American Legion. This was learned at the recent semi-annual conference of Legion officials at Orlando where the decision was made to bid for the 1926 meeting.

Miami was the unanimous selection by the real estaters as their candidate for the convention. It is understood that the Miami Chamber of Commerce is ready to pledge $50,000 immediately for entertaining the convention and will put up as much more as may be necessary to provide royally for it.

Philadelphia seems to be the popular choice for the 1926 convention city. The Quakers are seeking the 1926 meeting as a feature of the sesquicentennial celebration of the signing of the Declaration of Independence.

Paris, France, is widely favored for the 1927 convention. The project of meeting there is being investigated as to its feasibility. The French government will welcome the conclave with pleasure.

Local Leaders Get Millinery Lesson

Local Home Bureau Leaders From All Parts of Ulster County Had First Millinery Lesson Saturday.

Miss Beulah Stannard, specialist in millinery from Pratt Institute, conducted the first millinery lesson of the year for the local leaders in the Ulster County Home Bureau on Saturday. Local leaders from all communities having millinery on their program were here to meet Miss Stannard. The meeting was held in the offices of the Home Bureau, 54 Crown street.

Miss Stannard was hearty in hearty in her praises of the quality of work done by the Ulster County local leaders, it being the best she has yet seen among the women with whom she has been working. She looks forward with enthusiasm to her second meeting with them in the near future.

In the first lesson measurements, patterns and construction of frames were considered. She will follow this with coverings and trimmings, all of which will be most fascinating to the class. Through her charming personality and the efficient manner in which she handled her class Miss Stannard won the admiration of all who are taking the work, who expect much benefit to the women of Ulster county from this course.

UNEARNED CRITICISM

By FRANCIS H. SISSON

Chairman, Public Relations Commission American Bankers Association.

There has been some disposition to criticize the administration of the country's banking system for the sudden collapse of prices and curtailment of credits in 1920 and 1921, and the subsequent financial difficulties of the farmers. As a matter of fact, whatever blame may attach to bankers must be for the too generous financing, in many cases, of speculative investment in farm property during the period of inflation. If any just criticism could be directed at the manner in which the Federal Reserve System functioned in this situation, in the opinion of many it would be that the Reserve banks delayed too long in raising the rediscount rates. An earlier effort might have stayed the process of inflation.

Francis H. Sisson

The collapse of 1920 was by no means confined to agriculture, and was the inevitable sequel to the inflation period. All branches of business suffered in this period of reaction and perhaps none more than banking, against which this criticism has been levelled. The financial situation of the farmers was greatly aggravated by the fact that the high land values and high prices of agricultural products had led many farmers to incur obligations based on the inflated values. If the farmer was victimized at all, indeed, he was the victim of too much rather than too little consideration. The real progress which has been achieved in agricultural finance in recent years lies more in the intelligent distribution of farm credit than in volume.

With agencies now functioning for the provision of ample credits for the American farmer, his enduring success depends upon the wisdom and foresight with which he meets the problems of production and marketing. More than ever before, his activities must be regulated with reference to world conditions, and his profits, like those of the manufacturer or merchant, will reflect the measure of his success in adjusting his activities to these conditions.

BANKERS HELP

The banks of Linn County, Oregon, are showing more enthusiasm than ever this year in behalf of a county corn exhibit similar to that held last year at the Linn County Fair. Last year's exhibit was the result of a contest for a prize offered by a number of local banks. This was so successful that this year ten out of the eleven banks in the county will subscribe to the effort.

The Agricultural Committee of the Alabama Bankers Association has recommended that a scholarship fund be established for the education of worthy young men and women along agricultural and home economics lines. It is estimated that if each bank in the state were to contribute 25 cents per thousand capital, five to six thousand dollars per annum would be realized.

The Agricultural Committee of the Oklahoma Bankers Association, in its report, recommends that the bankers see that a competent agent is appointed in each county and that he has a degree from some agricultural college. They believe that the agricultural possibilities of the state should be better advertised and that each county bankers association should do some work along that line.

Searcy County Bankers Association, Arkansas, entertained as its guests recently some seventy-five farmers and business men. The result was the organization of the North Central Arkansas Agricultural Association. Its purpose will be to co-ordinate the efforts of the farmers and business men in promoting a better agriculture. Searcy County bankers are giving 100 settings of purebred eggs for distribution to the boys' and girls' clubs in the county.

H. S. Mowrer, chairman of the Agricultural Committee of the New Jersey Bankers Association, together with H. J. Baker, director of extension work in the College of Agriculture, made a complete tour of the state this spring, calling on the county agents and agricultural committees of the various county organizations to get a definite line-up on the work done and the plans for the coming year. Ways and means for furthering the program of the state committee were considered at these conferences.

Man Jailed After Woman's Death

Rhinebeck Woman Dies of Injuries Sustained When Struck by Auto—Rhinecliff Resident Charged with Manslaughter.

Everett Cole of Rhinecliff, is in the Dutchess county jail charged with manslaughter in the second degree following his arrest by Deputy Sheriff O'Brien, of Rhinebeck, who accuses him of being the driver of the car which hit Miss Laura Fraleigh, 53, of Center street, Rhinebeck, and injured her so badly that she died Saturday night at the Thompson Memorial Hospital, Rhinebeck.

Miss Fraleigh was walking down the road between Rhinecliff and Rhinebeck with Albert Davis, her brother-in-law, at the time of the accident. Earlier in the day she had come to Kingston with Mr. Davis to shop. They returned to Rhinecliff about 7:30 Saturday night. As there was no bus or taxi at the landing they started to walk to Rhinebeck. They had not gone far when an automobile came along and is alleged to have been driving on the wrong side of the road, struck Miss Fraleigh and threw her body 35 feet. The car, it is alleged, then disappeared.

Mr. Davis tried to stop passing cars but was not able to do so until a boy riding a bicycle came along. The boy was sent back to the station for aid. Meantime another car stopped and Miss Fraleigh was rushed to the hospital. She was conscious until a few minutes before her death. Dr. H. L. Cookingham of Red Hook performed an autopsy at the request of Coroner John A. Card and this disclosed that death was caused by internal hemorrhage resulting from a ruptured liver. She also suffered a fractured arm and leg and was badly bruised. An inquest in the case will be held.

Deputy Sheriff O'Brien started out on a search for the automobile as soon as the circumstances of the accident became known. According to the Poughkeepsie Star, he was told that Everett Cole had driven along the road at about the same time the accident happened. He went to Cole's home and it is said found him sleeping in the woodshed. Deputy O'Brien inspected Cole's Hudson touring car before waking the man and found, the authorities say, that the bar bracing the headlights was bent back so it touched the radiator. He then awakened Cole and placed him under arrest.

When Miss Fraleigh died a short time later District Attorney Reynolds and Sheriff Close of Poughkeepsie were summoned. Cole had been arrested by Deputy O'Brien and held in bail of $500 until the extent of Miss Fraleigh's injuries were learned. This charge was changed to manslaughter in the second degree. He was held in $5,000 bail, before Justice of the Peace Wolfe.

Cole is a carpenter and is employed by Irving Staley of Rhinebeck. He was connected with the accident two years ago in which Deputy Commissioner of Highways was killed near the Hoe estate.

Funeral services for Miss Fraleigh were held privately at her late home, the Rev. Mr. Isman of Rhinebeck officiating. Miss Fraleigh is survived by a sister, Edith Cropper of Staatsburg, a niece, Laura Davis, and two cousins, Harriet Cropper, a nurse at Vassar Brothers Hospital, and Mrs. Julia Cropper, of Poughkeepsie.

FRANCE BUILDING ON BETTER LINES

Republic Replaces War-Devastated Areas With Handsome Towns.

New York.—Upon some of its war-devastated areas France has seen the rise of villages and towns more lovely, more various in architecture, more comfortable, healthful and economical than those shattered to dust. Designs and pictures of these new settlements, harmonious and beautiful of aspect, have been brought to this country by Julian Clarence Levi, representative of the American Institute of Architects and the Architectural league.

Returning after some months in Europe, where he endeavored to arouse interest and secure participation in the forthcoming exposition of architecture and the allied arts, Mr. Levi is chiefly enthusiastic about the garden cities. The exposition is to be in New York, says the Stars and Stripes.

The man to conceive the garden-city project and the prime mover in advancing it is a French engineer of architectural training, M. Dautry, who was instrumental in bringing a long list of architects, both French and foreign, into the work of design. The reconstructions were undertaken by the Northern Railway company to provide new homes and cities for its employees.

"M. Dautry," Mr. Levi says, "is not only a capable engineer and executive but he is a man of unbounded enthusiasm and winning personality, able to surmount every obstacle encountered. I visited the beautiful homes and cities the company has established. They number more than 11,000. The economy with which its operations were effected is marvelous.

Brick From Railway Ashes.

"Even the large heaps of cinders accumulated for years near the sands of the Aisne were used for brick purposes. They served wonderfully, as both sides, facing the exterior and interior walls, were rough and ideal for plastering on the inside and for covering with cement on the outside. Their use served to bring expense down to the minimum.

"Near the junctions of railroads there are convenient sleeping stations built for the engineers and train crews. I noticed they had special ventilating apparatus. I should say that a much larger proportion of the people than hitherto ventilate their sleeping apartments at night."

Literally, new areas in France have emerged from the ruins of the war—new architecturally, new in concept, both structurally and in their planning for the growth of new civic and social activities. Methods devised for the comfort and happiness of their population are most modern. They have lost nothing of the picturesque quality which the world associates with the provinces of France, Mr. Levi says.

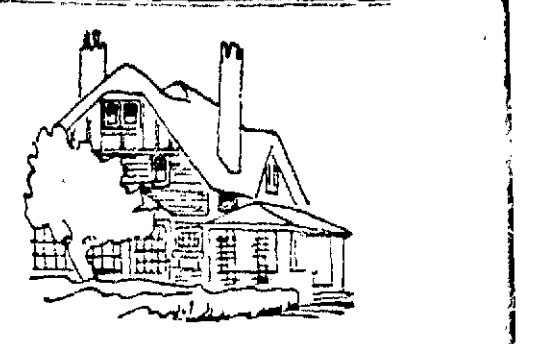

There was insufficient capital available after the war for the widespread reconstruction of the smaller towns, and, while the greatest gratitude is expressed toward the efforts of Americans in this direction, the trail of the Four Horsemen had passed over too wide a swath to permit provincial reconstruction as rapidly as industry demanded.

Beauty Is Prime Note.

In the new city of Deliverance, which represents 827 families, there are 91 different types of homes. Public baths, free medical examination buildings, school and athletic fields are included. In the new city of Lens, in which the Northern Railroad company has exerted much activity and to whose beauty American city planning organizations and architects have contributed not a little, there are not only beautiful and comfortable homes but a salle des fetes (amusement house) decorated with great taste, playgrounds with every modern equipment and artistic stores and shops blending with the surrounding residences. Drug stores, tobacco merchants' stores and barber shops are to be seen in the midst of flowers prevailing everywhere, even among the lowliest of shops.

The American architects and city planners suggested and put in force many economies.

The ordinary home of the railroad worker consists usually of a four-room house. A large room is used both as a sitting and dining room and there are three large, well-ventilated bedrooms, kitchen and bath. Each house has a porch and also a concrete cellar, which is a need of the French people for the preservation of their wines and fruits. Then there are the larger houses of five and six rooms for families of six to eight persons.

TRY IT AND SEE

You'd no doubt be surprised at the offers of sale you'd get if you advertised in The Freeman Classified Columns for a particular kind of home.

Example of Chivalry Among Lower Animals?

An unusual "big brother" act among animals is described by a park naturalist who saw a large marmot or woodchuck attack and drive off a mink after the latter had captured and fatally wounded a ground squirrel.

The scene of the little drama was near the bridge over Lava creek, a small stream in the northern part of Yellowstone park. After describing the capture of the luckless squirrel, the naturalist goes on to say:

"While the squirrel was struggling in the clutches of the mink a large woodchuck, apparently attracted by the squealing of the squirrel, came and stood on his hind legs a moment to review the scene, then ran straight for the point of battle. The mink raised his head just in time to see the marmot and escape him by rushing to the bank of the nearby creek; the marmot followed, but too slowly.

"The railing of the creek bridge is supported by low uprights with leaning braces of timber. On one of these braces the marmot climbed, facing the squirrel left dying in the road some yards away; then he calmly proceeded to wash his face with his front paws. Apparently the 'big brother' act is an old story in the wild animal world, like so many other things which we have thought human, only to discover, upon investigation, that we have merely adopted them with human procrastination.

"In a former year I once saw a mink deliberately attack a marmot of medium size. In this case the contestants, after a fierce battle, finally called it a draw."

Noted "Spoon Eater" Dies

John A. Maimgrene of Parsons, Kan., who several years ago became famous as the "Spoon eater," died recently at the Kansas state hospital for epileptics. During the period of his notoriety he was operated on and 27 spoons, a safety pin and other pieces of metal were taken from his stomach. According to reports he died as a result of eating his blanket which he first cut up into small strips.

Discard the Pack Mule

Barcelona and other prominent cities in southern Spain no longer have the pack mule as the principal method of freight transportation about the streets, and that feature and others that were quite Oriental in type have given way to modern conveniences, a delightful surprise to travelers, and the city of Barcelona is planning a subway to help with its traffic.

The Home Bureau is glad to see so much interest in the unit here. Several have applied for membership and considering the valuable work in store for the women of Kingston this year many more are expected to come into the work. The membership is only a dollar a year and the very best training is given by specialists from the State College of Home Economics and Agriculture at Cornell, and from other eastern universities.

The subjects from which the Kingston program can be made up include the following: Millinery, food preparation nutrition, clothing, civics, dramatic arts, recreation and landscape gardening. Those expecting to come into the work should be present Friday afternoon to help in the selection of subjects they should like to take. The Kingston unit is looking forward to accomplishing much this year.

Vulcanite Production

Practically all rubber intended for commercial uses is treated at a high temperature with sulphur, with the result that it becomes enormously hardened. When, however, the proportion of sulphur used is very high, the production is vulcanite—a rubbery compound of such extreme hardness as to resemble ebony. Vulcanite indeed looks very much like ebony, and is often called ebonite. In this form, it is frequently used as a substitute for horn, ivory or bone, in such articles as combs, knife handles, pipe stems, buttons, and the like. The word is derived from Vulcan, the God of Fire of the ancient Romans.

Facts About Natal

A Zulu Warrior of Natal.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

NATAL, one of the provinces of the Union of South Africa, which the prince of Wales recently visited, is probably Great Britain's best hope for a real cotton-producing region within the empire. A projected railway in the province will open up a quarter of a million fertile acres of what British experts consider as good cotton land as any to be found in America.

Natal is not well known to the outside world, because it is merged in a greater whole that attracts all the attention at a distance. Natal is now one of the divisions in Africa's "United States," the Union of South Africa. But like our own Texas it started out as a colony of another power and later had an independent existence of its own as a republic. Settlers from Holland first placed it in the fold of European colonies and later organized it as an independent country. Great Britain took it over in 1842 and merged it into the Union of South Africa when that federation was formed in 1910.

Natal lies just around Africa's corner, only a little way beyond the Cape of Good Hope, by turning which Vasco da Gama, in 1497, found the all-important water route to the East. Natal fronts, therefore, on the southern part of the Indian ocean. It extends roughly between south latitude 27 and 32, and has a position corresponding, in the northern hemisphere, to that of northern Florida and the southern and central portions of the other Gulf states.

In area Natal is some 5,000 square miles greater than South Carolina. As in that and other of our South Atlantic states, the coastal belt is relatively low and warm with a subtropical climate. It is in this zone that Natal's potential cotton lands are situated. There, too, is a considerable sugar industry, and large tea plantations. The tea industry, however, is losing ground since the province placed strict limits on immigration from India. Back about thirty miles from the coast the midland belt begins. This zone is higher and cooler, as is the back country of the American Gulf states, and constitutes a "corn belt." Still farther from the coast are the uplands of Natal, where higher altitude and lower temperature combine to create conditions like those of the plains of Texas and Oklahoma. And, as in the uplands of those states, stock raising and cereal production are the dominant industries.

Called the Garden Province.

Although the smallest of the provinces of the Union of South Africa, Natal is in many ways the most favored. Because of its agricultural possibilities, already pretty well developed, Natal is known as the "Garden province." Its scenery is more varied than that of any other province; it has the heaviest population of British extraction; and its native population is of a much higher type than that of the rest of South Africa, being largely Zulus.

The chief scenic factor in Natal is the Drakensberg rampart. This is loosely called a mountain range. In reality it is the seaward edge of a high plateau that stands cliffike over the low country about a hundred miles inland. This rampart, in most places difficult of access, gives Natal an isolation that has shown itself in the development of a marked individuality among its people.

At the Drakensberg one encounters scenery that is stupendous. At places the great cliffs rise almost sheerly for 11,000 feet. The edge is scanned with canyons, many of which seem choked with a jumble of gigantic bowlders as big as houses.

The Drakensberg is not only a feature of beauty. Over its edge streams flash in mighty leaps, crediting potential power that will some day be harnessed. A few of the falls have already been set to turning electric generators and a portion of the railway mileage is already electrified.

In the plateau country above the Drakensberg rampart Natal has valuable coal mines. The quality of this fuel is better than that of any other South African coal, and because of this and the down-grade haul to Durban great quantities of it are shipped, some as far as India.

Customs of the Zulus

Zululand, contained within the borders of Natal, is a native reservation. A native high court administers civil justice and deals with all the political crimes, and with crimes arising out of native law and custom—ordinary crimes falling under the ordinary criminal law. Natives can acquire the franchise under certain conditions.

It has been broadly but erroneously asserted that the native girls are bought and sold in marriage. When a Zulu boy has found his affinity, or rather one of many of them, he declares himself to the girl's father, and is informed how much "lobola" is necessary to effect a legal marriage arrangement. "Lobola" consists in nothing more than a gift of a certain number of cattle, usually ten to twenty, as a guarantee of good faith and evidence that the prospective husband is able to provide. The title to the cattle and their offspring does not pass to the father of the girl, although he receives and holds possession of them, but to the children, for whose benefit the "lobola" is held in trust.

Many strange customs and laws obtain in Zululand, but there is no moral code in all the world more rigidly observed than that of the Zulus. Women do practically all of the agricultural work and provide for the family, while the men, by tradition, are busily engaged in war or hunting. The women also brew the native beer. If it becomes necessary for any member of the family to hire out as a domestic, the lot usually falls to the man.

Polygamy is recognized and practiced by the Zulus. Each wife is accorded the same consideration and treatment. Jealousy, malice or hatred is seldom seen in any character, and no more peaceable and lovable race exists.

East Indians Numerous.

Natal has a population of about 150,000 whites, about the same number of East Indians, and approximately 1,250,000 negroes. The East Indians are an important factor economically. Throughout the entire colony the Indian will be found in all the walks of commercial and professional life, from the ordinary laborer coaling ships to the thoroughly educated and trained barrister at law, fighting for the right of his countrymen.

Durban, the chief port of Natal, looking off to the east over a warm, sun-bathed ocean, is close to the corresponding latitude of Jacksonville, Fla., Savannah and New Orleans. In recent years a sandbar across its bay has been pierced, giving the city a large, well-protected harbor. It has a population nearly twice that of Savannah. In spots it has much of the flavor of the East, with a Mohammedan mosque, coolie-markets and Hindu shops. Along the curving shores of the harbor is a beautiful tree-lined esplanade. Inland rise hills, called the Berea, on which are the villas and garden-surrounded bungalows of the more prosperous residents.

The capital of Natal, Pietermaritzburg, a town of about 40,000 inhabitants, is situated in the uplands some fifty miles inland from Durban. It preserves much of the old Dutch flavor given by its founding Boers. It has one of the most equable climates in South Africa and is a favorite health resort. The town is surrounded by mountains, and in easy reach is some of the finest scenery in Natal.

Men's Mission At St. Mary's

Mission services at St. Mary's Church for the male members of the parish this week have attracted large crowds on Sunday and Monday. The mission is being conducted by the Apostolic Mission Band of the New York Diocese.

On Sunday afternoon the mission for the women came to a very solemn and successful close. Sunday evening the services for the men began with a large attendance.

The eloquence of the fathers and their scholarly talks assure the success of the mission.

Masses are celebrated each morning at 5 o'clock and at 7 o'clock followed by a short instruction. Each evening at 7:30 o'clock there is a short instruction followed by the sermon and concluded with benediction.

Spanish Counterfeiters Laugh at Authorities

Many a tourist in Spain has made the acquaintance of the Sevillan dollar, that mysterious counterfeit which contains more silver than a genuine 5-peseta piece and which, though a forgery, is tolerated. The duro sevillano holds a unique place in the history of coins. Its origin goes back to the days of the war in Cuba and the Philippines, when the Spanish government, in want of money, increased the circulation of silver dollars minted for about half their face value. Counterfeiters seized the opportunity to set up a rival mint which has never been discovered and in which duros sevillanos are produced. It is believed that persons of high rank own this mint and derive their incomes from it. In 1908 a finance minister decided to gather in all the counterfeit dollars. He offered one good duro in exchange for a sevillano. The silver thus collected weighed nearly 70 tons when melted into bars. The minister's initiative cost the state a round sum, but did not stop the flow of sevillanos. Ancha es Castilla! (Wide is Castile!) is an old saying, and in the vastness of the plains and sierras of all the Spains is perhaps the best explanation of why wholesale counterfeiting of the coin of the realm goes on undisturbed.

The Simple Life

I have thought, when walking in the woods through a certain retired dell, bordered with scrub oaks and pines, far from the village and affording a glimpse only through an opening of the mountains in the horizon, how my life might pass there, simple and true and natural, and how many things would be impossible to be done there. How many books I might not read!—Thoreau.

Two "Shaker" Groups

There are two groups of "Shakers" in the United States. One is a Christian group, distributed through the eastern states, whose self-chosen name is "Believers in Christ's Second Coming." The second group is made up of the native Indians living in the region of Puget sound, who made up or invented what is known as the Shake religion in 1881.

Ship Flag Etiquette

Upon leaving a domestic port and entering a foreign port a ship flies the flag of the country to which it is going on the forward mast. For instance, a United States ship leaving New York for London flies the British flag from foremast upon leaving New York and also upon entering London. The United States flag is flown from the stern.
